JOHNNY M'EWAN, INNOCENT CAUSE OF HIS MOTHER'S SHOOTING.

HUSBAND HELD IN $10,000 FOR ATTACK ON WIFE

Man Was Angry Because the Mother Refused to Give Up Their Little Son.

After hiding her three-year-old son Johnny from her husband, Alexander McEwan, as a result of which he shot her fatally, it is feared, the young wife lies dying in the City Hospital to-day, moving about uneasily in her fevered condition, murmuring over and over:

"Don't let him get my child; don't let him get little Johnny!"

The shooting took place in a restaurant at the corner of Howard and Bulfinch streets. The frantic husband fired three shots that took effect. The man had gone there, he said in a letter found on him, to kill his wife and himself.

Tried to Kill Himself.

He tried to carry out his intention about himself, but the revolver failed to work. He was arraigned in the Municipal Court to-day, charged with assault with intent to kill, and was held for the Grand Jury in $10,000.

The little boy, the innocent cause of the tragedy, is in the care of Mrs. Myra Ames of No. 30 School street, Cambridge.

The little one was calling for his mother and wondering at her absence when a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter called at Mrs. Ames's house.

It was only by a peculiar premonition that Mrs. Ames and the baby were not at the restaurant at the time of the shooting. Mrs. Ames had got the baby ready to take it to see its mother and then for some reason that she can not explain, she deferred the visit.

Arraigned in Court To-day.

McEwan was arraigned in the First Session Municipal Court before Judge Wentworth, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill. He pleaded not guilty, waived examination and was held for the November Grand Jury in $10,000 bail.

The prisoner appeared calm when he was led from the detention pen. During the arraignment he looked steadily at the judge. He was immediately hustled away to the Charles Street Jail. On the way he was morose and said nothing to the court officers.

A Mrs. Isabella Martin, a cook at the Rexford, and Miss Stott, a waitress, were held in $200 bonds for appearance as witnesses

ELLIS ON TRIAL; CHARGE 8-HOUR LAW VIOLATION

U. S. GOVERNMENT CONTRACTOR DEFENDANT IN FEDERAL DISTRICT COURT.

William H. Ellis, a United States government contractor, doing business at No. 17 Milk street, and who recently completed pier No. 2 at the Charlestown Navy Yard, was placed on trial in the United States District Court before Judge Dodge to-day on an indictment charging him with violating the eight-hour law for workmen on a government contract.

The prosecution is the result of a complaint formally made to United States Commissioner Hayes by Colin W. Cameron, business agent of the Carpenters' District Council.

The Carpenters' District Council got into the matter earnestly as the result of an investigation by Edwin C. Gates of the Wharf and Bridge Carpenters' Union. Gates was put upon the case by his union. He reported the names of five men who, it is complained, had been working beyond the legal limit, and Commissioner Hayes held Ellis for the Grand Jury.

Seventeen Witnesses Summoned.

United States District Attorney Asa P. French appears for the United States, with Assistant District Attorney Guy A. Ham. The defendant, Ellis, is represented by Boyd B. Jones. Seventeen witnesses have been summoned.

Following the declaration of President Roosevelt that the eight-hour law will be strictly enforced on all government work, the trial will attract national interest. Local labor leaders call it the most important that has been known in this section for a generation.

The workmen whom it is complained were worked overtime are Patrick O'Neil, Amble Dagoust, Henry A. Grace, Frederick Gorrill and Frank Brown.

The complainant, Campbell, says specifically that each of these five men worked nine hours on June 13 in the present year.

May Make Emergency Plea.

Some who are watching the trial expect that Ellis will assert that the construction of the pier may properly be looked upon as an "extraordinary emergency" job, such as are exempt from the eight-hour clause.

Ellis took the contract on October 12 of last year. He is being prosecuted under the act of August 1, 1902, the first section of which provides that a work day on government work shall be limited to eight hours, except in extraordinary emergency.

Only one witness was examined at the forenoon session. He was Frederick Thompson, a civil engineer at the navy yard, directly responsible, it is said, for the pier work. He said the pier was completed last week, after fifteen months. He said that generally the work ran from 7:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m., but he did not know of any individuals who had worked more than eight hours.

7-YEAR-OLD SCHOOLBOY KILLED BY TROLLEY

While hurrying to school to-day Thomas Logue, seven years old, of No. 7 Asylum street, was run over by an electric car, and died at the City Hospital a short time later from the injuries. Ribs on both sides of his body were broken, his skull fractured and the body badly cut and bruised. The wheels did not pass over the boy, but the fender rolled him along and then the guard on the front trucks caught him.

The accident occurred in front of No. 337 Harrison avenue, just a few minutes before school time. The car was a Geneva avenue, No. 1,575, inward bound, in charge of Conductor 3,048 and Motorman 3,041.

BONES IN LEG BROKEN BY KICK

Declaring that he was assaulted while standing in front of No. 128 Court street at 11:40 a. m. to-day, William J. Montgomery, aged forty-five years, residing at No. 10 Rutherford avenue, Charlestown, was found lying on the sidewalk and taken to the Relief Hospital. Two bones in his right leg were broken.

He says an unknown man suddenly kicked him in the right leg, causing him to fall into the gutter.

STANDARD OIL OPENS DEFENCE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

FINDLAY, O., Oct. 16.—In the case of the State vs. Standard Oil Company for "conspiracy against trade" the State concluded its testimony to-day.

The State was precluded by the ruling of Judge Banker from offering a line of evidence intended to show that the Standard gave secret rebates to retail dealers in oil.

After the examination of two witnesses to-day the prosecution rested and the defence immediately began. The arguments waxed warm, and Kline of the Standard told Attorney General Ellis to go back to Columbus and learn something.

W. L. Finley, State oil inspector, explained his duties and those of fourteen deputies. He stated that the Standard paid all fees at Cleveland.

CARDINAL HEARS THE NEW "AVE MARIA"

When Ruggero Leoncavallo and the La Scala Orchestra were in Baltimore, Cardinal Gibbons received the composer during the day and attended his concert in the evening to hear Leoncavallo's new "Ave Maria, dedicated to Pope Pius X., and for which the Pope sent the composer a letter of praise and his blessing. Besides the "Ave Maria," the program for Leoncavallo's engagement here at Symphony Hall Saturday and Sunday includes the best numbers in "Pagliacci," excerpts from "Zaza," the new opera, "Chatterton," his first work, and "Roland de Berlin," in which it is said the Kaiser collaborated on the score

CHARGES HARRY THAW IN KILLING WHITE HAD ACCOMPLICE

District Attorney Jerome Intimates Second Indictment Is Forthcoming in Architect Murder Case—Sensation Caused by New Development in Famous Murder.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—District Attorney Jerome startled the Court of General Sessions this afternoon, when, in opposing the motion of Harry K. Thaw for a writ of prohibition restraining the further taking of testimony by the State, he inferred so plainly as to make misunderstanding impossible that he was about to have a second person indicted in the famous murder case.

The District Attorney intimated the identity of the second person to be brought into the case as a joint defendant when he made this amazing statement to Recorder Goff:

"Your Honor, it does not appear in this case where the defendant got his revolver, nor does it appear whether words were spoken to egg the defendant on to the deed he committed."

Ever since the tragedy in the Madison Square Roof Garden, where Stanford White met his death, the name of the second person in the case has been repeatedly mentioned.

While Jerome's pointed remarks came as a surprise to-day, they only foreshadow what has long been considered as one of the probable developments in the prosecution of the young Pittsburg millionaire.

FANEUIL HALL TO ROCK FOR MORAN TO-NIGHT

VAST CROWD WILL HEAR LEADERS SOUND THE CAMPAIGN KEYNOTE.

Faneuil Hall will be rocked to-night as it has not been rocked before in many years when the Democratic ratification meeting is held and Candidate John B. Moran makes his first speech of the campaign.

Word has come to the managers of the affair and to the chairman of the City Committee that crowds will flock from every ward in the city to hear Moran and the other speakers and give the candidates of the party a cheer of encouragement.

Mr. Moran spent a large part of the day yesterday working on his speech, and it is said that he has never given an address more careful attention. In the speech he will explain where he stands and where the party stands and why the ticket appeals to the voters of the State for support.

Mayor to Preside.

Every member of the Democratic City Committee with Chairman McClellan will be on hand to lead in the cheering. Mayor Fitzgerald is to preside and make the opening address. As it is planned the speakers will appear in the following order:

George Fred Williams.
Charles W. Bartlett.
Congressman John A. Keliher.
Congressman William S. McNary.
Senator Andrew J. Peters, candidate for Congress.
Joseph F. O'Connell, candidate for Congress.
William T. A. Fitzgerald.
Edward P. Barry.
Charles C. Paine, candidate for Secretary of State.
George M. Harrigan, candidate for Treasurer.
Thomas L. Hisgen, candidate for Auditor.
E. Gerry Brown, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.
John B. Moran.

The first speeches will all be brief, in order that the best part of the time may be given to Mr. Moran. He has improved in health within the last few days, and his managers believe that he will make one of the best efforts that he ever has done on the public platform.

Knows What He Wants.

Mr. Moran knows what he wants to talk about and he knows how he wants to talk it. He is to handle Governor Guild and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and the rest of the machine without gloves. Especially does he plan to pitch into the senior Senator from Massachusetts, who as boss of the State has come to help the party of Guild and Draper and keep it from being wrecked in the storm that threatens to sweep Moran and Brown into office.

The doors of Faneuil Hall will be open soon after 7 o'clock. Until 7:45 o'clock the galleries will be reserved for women, and their escorts, and then thrown open to the general public who cannot find seats in the body of the hall. The speaking commences at 8 o'clock.

COURT DISCHARGES ROOSEVELT'S CHUM

SHAUN KELLEY FOUND NOT GUILTY IN MUNICIPAL COURT TO-DAY.

Shaun Kelley, chum of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., charged with assaulting Patrolman Lawrence Fraher on the Common during "horse play" of Harvard students, in which young Roosevelt and Meredith Blagden, a fellow student, took part, was discharged to-day by Judge Wentworth in the municipal court.

Kelley, the court held, had resisted what he believed was an assault by one whom he did not know was an officer. Under the circumstances, the latter had no right to make an arrest.

The incident occurred shortly before midnight on September 27. Patrolmen Fraher and Grace interfered, when they believed that Kelley and Roosevelt, who were hauling Blagden about with a rope, were committing an assault. Kelley acknowledged at the hearing last week that he "shouldered" Fraher. Fraher's nose was broken and he was in the hospital for a week.

Judge Wentworth reserved his decision after the hearing until to-day. Kelley was accompanied to court by his attorney, Alderman Francis R. Bangs, an intimate friend of the Roosevelt family.

"I have given serious consideration to this case because of the injury to the policeman," said Judge Wentworth. "I think that punishment should be imposed if guilt were shown. But the defendant did not know the officer, and, therefore, he had a right to use reasonable force to prevent himself from suffering assault.

"In this case the officer had no legal right to arrest as the boys were merely playing among themselves. I have only words of commendation for the officers. They were justified from every standpoint in stopping the disturbance, but not arrest. I therefore find the defendant not guilty."

"I thank you," murmured Kelley as Judge Wentworth finished. He left the court room smiling.

TO COMMAND THE U. S. TUG WINNISIMMETT

Lieutenant George M. Daniels of the United States revenue cutter service, who has been on the Connecticut station, was to-day ordered to take command of the revenue tug Winnisimmett, connected with the Boston custom house. Captain F. J. Ainsworth, who has been in command of the tug since July, 1905, has not yet received orders to a new post

ASK PRINTER FINED UNDER ALIEN LAW

Petition Filed Against Norwood Press for Alleged Violation of Federal Statutes.

United States District Attorney Asa P. French filed a petition in the Federal Circuit Court to-day asking that the firm of J. Stearns Cushing & Co., proprietors of the Norwood Press, one of the firms whose employes went on strike when the printers declared for an eight-hour day, forfeit the sum of $1,000 for bringing alien labor into this country under contract.

The petition cites that the firm on February, 1906, wrote a letter to William D. Cook of Windsor, N. S., saying that they were in need of first-class book compositors and offering him a position on trial. If he proved satisfactory he was to be given $18 a week and a permanent position.

This case was taken up by the Typographical Union, who presented the evidence to Mr. French and asked that it be taken up.

The statutes provide that a fine of $1,000 shall be imposed for bringing alien labor into this country under contract.

MRS. DAVIS SINKING; NO HOPE GIVEN

Death of Confederate President's Widow a Matter of a Few Hours.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Jefferson Davis, widow of the president of the Confederacy, is reported sinking so rapidly of pneumonia to-day in her suite at the Hotel Majestic that her relatives around her bedside expected her death at any moment.

Dr. Robert H. Wylie of No. 72 West Fifty-second street said to-day that all hope of Mrs. Davis rallying had been given up. He had been at the dying woman's side throughout the night.

Mrs. Davis sank into unconsciousness at 8:15 o'clock. All the efforts of Dr. Wylie to bring her out of her state of coma were unavailing.

At 10:30 a. m. Mrs. Davis's condition was unchanged save that she was weaker. She seems to be sinking steadily and no hope is offered for her recovery.

date for Congress in that district, charging him with being one of the bitterest foes of organized labor in the State. The leaders of the anti-Lane movement believe that they will bring about his defeat by an overwhelming majority.

Ex-Senator Peters, who is the Democratic candidate, is basing his campaign on the labor record of his Republican opponent. The labor leaders will hold anti-Lane meetings every Saturday night at the headquarters of the Ward 19 Wage Earners' Club.

On the bill to regulate the sale and leasing of machinery, known as the shoe machinery bill, Senator Lane voted against a third reading and voted against a motion to reconsider.

On the bill to allow the voters to indicate their opinion on important matters of public interest, known as the public opinion bill, he voted against a third reading.

On the bill relative to the hours of labor of women and minors employed in manufactories of textile goods Senator Lane voted against a third reading. When the bill came up for passage he voted no.

On the bill relative to returns of employers of legislative counsel of agents and to the influencing of legislation, known as the lobby bill, Senator Lane is recorded in the Senate journal as absent or not voting.

W. T. A. FITZGERALD URGES DEMOCRATIC VOTERS TO REGISTER

As an expression of its endorsement and support of the Hon. W. T. A. Fitzgerald, Democratic candidate for Registrar of Deed the Democratic City Committee of Chelsea gave a largely attended reception to Mr. Fitzgerald at Banquet Hall, Chelsea, last evening. Mr. Fitzgerald delivered an address, in which he predicted a great Democratic victory, but he said that victory could not be won unless the Democratic voters registered, and he urged the committee to register every Democrat in the district before to-morrow night.

Mr. Fitzgerald also pledged a clean and honest administration of his office should he be elected. Others who spoke were John A. O'Keefe, candidate for Congress; Representative Thomas Driscoll and William F. Connery of Lynn.

WAGE-EARNERS CALL FOR UNITED SUPPORT OF MORAN AT POLLS

The following letter received by the BOSTON AMERICAN is self-explanatory:

To the Editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN:

Sir—We, the undersigned, would like to see the following report of a movement favorable to John B. Moran in the columns of a paper which has always been friendly to the cause of labor.

Large gatherings of union men were held yesterday afternoon and evening at the different labor halls in the Wells Memorial Building and other labor halls, in behalf of John B. Moran for Governor.

Mr. Charles T. Rounbehler of the Firemen's Union, a prominent member, addressed all the meetings and lauded Mr. Moran's conduct during his present year as District Attorney. Mr. Rounbehler has proved to the utmost satisfaction of all members present that John B. Moran had thoroughly lived up to any and all promises made by him before he took office, and that by so doing there is no possible doubt but that the corporations, trusts and political grafters will conspire to defeat his election as the Bay State's Governor.

We, representing many wage-earners of Massachusetts, call on all our co-labor men of Massachusetts to stand by the man who stands by the people, and we believe that we can easily defeat the opposition candidate, who is, we believe, not only subservient to the corporations' call, but is also their ready and willing ally.

Among other speakers at the meetings were L. J. Brackett of the Firemen's and Engineers' unions, and Dennis F. Mahoney, president of the Boston Freight Clerks' Union.

YOUNG MEN'S CLUB HONOR NOMINEES OF DEMOCRATS

The Young Men's Democratic Club of Ward 20 is playing an important part in the opening of the political campaign, and a reception was tendered to Hon. John F. Cusick, nominee for the Senate; Maurice F. Walsh, Harry W. Dixon and Edward J. Barrett, nominees for Representatives, and Joseph O'Connell, nominee for Congress, last night.

Charles L. Cooney, president of the club, was in the chair and led the meeting which preceded the reception. The candidates for whom the reception was given spoke briefly, and all received the indorsement of the club. It was stated that the registration figures showed a net Democratic gain in the ward of more than 500 votes.

The club will give a reception next week to the candidates on the State and county tickets.

DAILEY TO SPEAK AT PETERS RALLY TO-MORROW NIGHT

William L. Dailey, candidate for the House of Representatives from Ward 11, will speak in the interests of the Hon. Andrew J. Peters at Lincoln Hall, Concord street, to-morrow night. Mr. Dailey is also taking the stump throughout the State for John B. Moran and the regular Democratic ticket.

GIVES, WITH CALL TO PEOPLE TO AID MORAN WITH SINEWS OF WAR

The following letter was received by Treasurer J. F. Davis of the Independence League campaign fund, with a check for $25 to-day:

Mr. J. F. Davis, Secretary-Treasurer Independence League of Massachusetts:

Dear Sir—I enclose you check for $25 for the purpose of helping to defray expenses of the coming campaign against the corporations and their allies, the trusts. We who know the hard task Mr. Moran has before him must be permitted to render the assistance we are capable of, be it ever so small. His limited finances, pitted against the plethoric purse of his opponents, should awaken the patriotism in every lover of liberty that stirred the men in 1776 in the old Bay State, when the liberty and equality of the citizens were at stake.

The blood of the Minute Men who fought beneath the standards of liberty and equal rights and died that we might perpetuate their example, survives yet in Boston. Mr. Moran is the embodiment of the patriot of 1776. He champions the people's cause against the aggressions of corporate greed and with strong arm reaches out for the immunity rascals and their trust-cotten, secretive masters.

Now is the time to test his friends. He'll soon be in action and will want the sinews of battle. Sentiment is cheap. Money alone will load his gun. Come! Minute Men of 1906, bring your powder to the firing line and let it not be said that a native son appealed in vain while he bore aloft the standard of equality of the whole people.

What better evidence is wanted that he is the best type of Democrat of Jefferson's day and as true and valiant a Republican as the best of Lincoln's day, than the monstrous abuse he has been subjected to.

Come, people, rally around the only candidate of the whole people. Fortify him with the sinews of war. His independence will permit him to ask only for your votes, and when you have placed upon him the crown of victory he will truly be in the fullest sense your faithful public servant.

I hold myself in readiness to answer any command to go to any part of the State at my own expense to assist in his election, which I believe at present is an assured fact.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) THOMAS H. BATES,

MAKE INSANITY PLEA IN POISON SANDWICH CASE

LAWYERS FOR NURSE ACCUSED OF VERMONT MURDER OUTLINE DEFENCE.

Special to the Boston American.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Oct. 16.—Charged with the deliberate murder of Fred Batchelder by giving him a sandwich in which arsenic had been placed, Raymond Mullen, a trained nurse, who claims to have been in the employ of Alfred G. Vanderbilt and other prominent people, listened in court here to-day to the attempts of his attorneys to free him from danger of the hangman's noose by proving that he was irresponsible for his act.

Dr. W. L. Wasson, one of the experts called by the defence, testified that Mullen might have poisoned the young victim without having any motive, and that such an act would be indicative of an abnormal mind.

Mullen says that it was while he was a nurse at the Shelbourn home of Dr. W. Seward Webb he was called upon to attend young Mr. Vanderbilt. He also asserts that he travelled all over the country as a Red Cross nurse.

Not guilty has been the plea from the first, and to-day Mullen as stoutly maintains his innocence and ignorance of the mysterious cause of the death of young Batchelder, whom he was nursing at the Page boarding house in Barre last March. With entire listlessness and indifference he has been listening to the witnesses for the prosecution offering testimony against him, and from his manner one would think he had nothing at all at stake.

The State rested yesterday afternoon, after which the defence put several witnesses on the stand. The greater part of the afternoon was taken up by the testimony of Drs. W. J. Upton and W. L. Wasson, physicians in the hospital for the insane at Waterbury, where Mullen has been under observation. Dr. Upton produced the records of the institution to show that from June to January of one year, Mullen was employed as a nurse in the asylum.

She said: "I respect and love America. While coming from California to Boston by train I have sen many great wonders. I was amazed to see your great mountains, your big houses and large people. In Japan everything is small. In this country everything is large.

"We travelled for miles and miles through the West without even seeing a house. It is not like that in Japan. We have not much waste land.

Japanese Grateful to America.

"The Japanese people are very grateful to this country. They will never forget President Roosevelt for his part in bringing the Russian-Japanese war to an end. The Japanese love Americans because of this."

CHARGE $4000 PENSION WENT TO WRONG MAN

U. S. District Attorney French Brings Civil and Criminal Action.

United States District Attorney Asa P. French to-day brought suit in both civil and criminal proceedings to recover from John Martin $4,084, which it is alleged has been wrongfully obtained in pensions from the government and is rightfully due John Marden of Uxbridge. Martin lives in Marlboro, and the case will come before court at Worcester, where he is now held.

It is charged that Martin wilfully intended to cheat the government when he filed papers at Washington applying for a pension upon these grounds:

That he was then (February 18, 1879) thirty-eight years old, a resident of Marlboro; enrolled January 2, 1864, in Company D, Fourth M. V. Cavalry; that he was honorably discharged in Boston, June 24, 1865. That, while in Jacksonville, Fla., October 24, 1864, while in retreat from the rebels he fell from a bridge while crossing it, broke both legs and lost the first two joints of his index finger, right hand; that he was rendered unable to earn a living.

The government contends that Martin was never enrolled and never injured in the manner stated. The pension started at $4 a month and increased to $14 a month.

John Marden of Uxbridge, under whose name Martin is said to have obtained the pension, was a member of the Fourth Massachusetts Cavalry. He went to Scotland in 1877. While he was gone it is alleged that the Marlboro man, taking advantage of wounds he knew the Uxbridge man received, made application and secured a pension.

CHILDREN IN PERIL OF AUTO

For overspeeding his huge automobile on the Strandway, City Point, and thereby endangering the lives of scores of children who were playing along the course, Harry F. Little, of Brookline, a wealthy automobilist, was fined $15 by Judge Fallon in the South Boston District Court to-day.

After an exciting race over the course, Patrolman Thomas F. Ryan, of the City Point Station, member of the bicycle squad, overhauled Little and summoned him. He appeared against him and charged that he travelled along at a rate over twenty-five miles an hour, besides imperilling children from the Perry School. Little paid his fine.

SAYS HUSBAND LEFT HOME FOR CHORUS GIRL

Wife Testifies to Finding Tell-tale Love Letter on Blotting Pad.

In the uncontested suit in Suffolk Superior Court to-day of Olive L. Ambrose against Frank S. Ambrose for absolute divorce on statutory grounds, a young man's hopeless infatuation for a chorus girl was the dominant note of the testimony. Sheldon L. Cook, a member of the Common Council, was the wife's chief witness.

Mr. Cook had been the most intimate friend of Mr. Ambrose, and it was while both of them were at the Empire Theatre last Winter that Mr. Ambrose, according to the testimony, became enamored of the chorus girl corespondent, whose name was Edith Warren.

Wife Kept Appointment.

Mrs. Ambrose testified that on several occasions she found fragments of letters written by her husband and beginning "Dear Edith." One letter to "Dear Edith" he had dried on a blotting pad in his room. Mrs. Ambrose traced the writing on the pad and deciphered the letter, and a copy of the writing was produced in court as evidence. In this letter Mr. Ambrose made an appointment to meet "Dear Edith" on Bromfield street. Mrs. Ambrose kept the appointment and there was a scene. When Mrs. Ambrose arrived home that night she found that her husband had packed and removed his clothing, leaving a letter to her saying that he was going to kill himself, so unhappy had she made him.

Found Suicide Note.

The next day the baggage taken by Mr. Ambrose was found on a Portland boat and attached was a note saying that he had jumped overboard.

It was offered as testimony that instead of jumping overboard, Mr. Ambrose had gone to Canada, where Miss Warren had joined him. From there the couple is alleged to have gone to Europe. They are now in Detroit, Mich.

Pending argument upon the question of alimony, Judge White reserved decision.

8,546 ADDED TO REGISTRY LIST

With only to-day and to-morrow left for registration for the State election in the city of Boston, the figures of the voting list up to this morning were 110,402.

If the record of yesterday, when 826 names were added to the list, is maintained to-day and to-morrow, last year's figures will be exceeded by over 200 names. Last year in the sub-registration 9,275 names were added to the list, while this year, with two days left for registration, 8,546 names have been added.

WATER BOARD MEMBERS QUIT UNDER FIRE

Two members of the Lynn Water Board, now under fire as the result of findings reported by the special commission appointed to investigate the building of the Saugus Walden pond dam, sent their resignations to Mayor Burney to-day. They are William B. Littlefield, president of the Board, and Thomas T. Nichols. The resignations will doubtless be accepted by the City Council to-night.

James Burns and Stephen W. Dearborn, the other two members, have decided to stick and fight it out.

Littlefield and Nichols say that they have taken this course to facilitate the reorganization of the board recommended by the investigating commission, which, they declare, did not impeach their honesty.

U. S. TO SHOW NO LENIENCY TO LEHNEMAN

No special consideration will be shown by United States authorities to James B. Lehneman, alleged head of the Chinese smuggling syndicate behind the recently captured Frolic expedition and other smuggling operations between Canada and the United States, if he returns voluntarily to this country.

Attorney O'Hearn of Halifax, where Lehneman has been arrested, was so informed to-day by United States District Attorney Asa P. French. In view of the understanding that it will probably be impossible to extradite Lehneman, Mr. O'Hearn called upon the United States District Attorney in the hope of receiving some guaranty of leniency, if Lehneman should return without process to Boston.

After the interview Mr. O'Hearn refused to make any statement. The attitude of this country was made clear by Mr. French in the following statement:

"I have said to Mr. O'Hearn, counsel for James B. Lehneman, that I did not regard it as consistent with the dignity of the United States to negotiate with one of its citizens, who is a fugitive from justice in a foreign country.

"If Lehneman will come back to Boston, surrender himself to the authorities here and acknowledge his guilt, he will be treated with such leniency as is usually shown and may be proper in view of all the circumstances of the case to those who plead guilty of the offence with which they are charged."

MISSING OLA BROOKS FOUND WITH MOTHER

Little Ola May Brooks, who left her home at No. 96 Pleasant street to go to school yesterday morning and has not been seen by her father, Joseph Brooks, since, was located to-day by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter at the home of her mother, No. 9 Margin street, Salem.

Little Ola is thirteen years old and is known throughout the lower section of the South End as the "prettiest girl of the Winthrop School," at which she has been a pupil.

The child lived with her father and stepmother. The latter is a young woman who married Brooks two years ago. Ola's mother was divorced from the father seven years ago, and Ola has lived with her father and his young wife for two years.

Yesterday Ola boarded an electric car for Lynn instead of going to school, and finally reached her mother's home in Salem, where she will remain, she declares.

MORAN TO MANAGE HIS OWN CAMPAIGN

John B. Moran has issued the following public statement to the members of the three parties which have nominated him for Governor, namely, to the Prohibition party, Independence League, and Democratic party:

BOSTON, Oct. 15, 1906.

To Members of the Prohibition Party, of the Independence League and of the Democratic Party and to the Officials thereof:

Gentlemen—

AS I have accepted the nomination of each of your parties, clearly stating in my letters of acceptance my position as to each plank in your platforms, and as there is concerning some of these planks a diversity of opinion among you, and as your speakers will of necessity disagree with each other upon some topics, and as I must not and will not consent to be held responsible for the utterances of others, nor for their personalities, conduct, criminal or otherwise, nor for their associations with corporations or grafters, real or suspected, it is necessary that I be in no way involved in the holding of your rallies, in the selection of your speakers or in the securing of or expending of campaign funds.

I may from time to time speak, when invited, at your rallies, with the express understanding that I am free from all connection therewith as above outlined.

No campaign funds should be accepted from grafters, from corporations, their agents or attorneys, from stock brokers, from horse racers or pool sellers, from breweries, liquor distilleries or liquor dealers, or from any person or combination of persons liable to have a personal interest in legislation.

It has been shown to me that by making confidential statements as to my public policies when elected that from fifty to one hundred thousand dollars would be raised by these various interests for this campaign.

My answer was that I would stand by my record as an enforcer of the law against great and small and by my pledges to the people as embodied in my platform of principles published last July.

In consequence I find myself opposed by this powerful combination of interests.

No honest, law-abiding citizen in any business need fear me.

I am the enemy of all grafters, corporation or individual, and of all law-breakers.

No Compromise with Law Violators.

I make compromise with none of them.

I will be neither the vacillating tool of nor the willing accomplice of criminals or corporations.

I will not be what my opponent is alleged to be, blind to the offences of the one and attached to the principles of the other.

The police officials, their appointing superiors, the district attorneys, will all be held criminally responsible by me under the law for their acquiescence in the committal of crime in their respective localities.

The gambling fraternity, the grafting combinations, and other violators of laws may own these servants of the public now, but that ownership will terminate in January or they will hold their future conferences inside of the jail doors.

I want no favors of any of them, and they will receive none from me.

They will receive simple justice, always tempered with such leniency as the circumstances justify.

The excessive expenditure of money, as in recent years, by all parties, tends to debauch the ballot. I am not buying the Governorship, nor the votes by which to secure it.

Ten thousand dollars, instead of seventy-five or a hundred thousand, is a reasonable sum to be expended by any political party in the State for the purpose of expounding its principles and properly presenting them to the people.

I am opposed to the expenditure by any political party of any more than that sum, and I am in favor of the enactment of a law making it criminal and depriving the candidate-elect of the office thereby secured.

Each of the three above mentioned political parties must conduct its campaign for its own candidates in its own way, subject, however, to the provisions of law, and subject to such restrictions as I have above set forth.

I will accept no office to which I may be elected by means disapproved by me.

Your respective organizations will therefore govern themselves accordingly.

My name will appear on the ballot in three separate places with a different party designation after my name in each place.

It is my wish that the designations appear in the order in which I received the nominations:

Prohibition first, Independence League second, Democratic third.

It is my desire that every Prohibitionist and Republican who votes for me shall mark his cross opposite my name following the designation Prohibition, that every Independence Leaguer shall mark his cross opposite my name following the League designation, and that every Democrat shall mark his cross opposite my name following the designation Democratic.

As the designations are printed on the ballot the voter makes his selection and merely puts his cross in the space after the designation.

My purpose in making this request is of course apparent.

I wish to know the relative voting strength of each of the political parties from which I have received nominations. This information will be useful as a guide for future political action.

Will Manage Personal Campaign Himself.

The nomination campaign committee, consisting of John P. Feeney, Granville S. MacFarland and Alonzo D. Moran, having faithfully and successfully performed the duties for which it was organized, is to wind up its affairs, file the account provided by law, and cease to exist.

I have no further use for campaign committees nor for press agents.

As I desire to no longer suffer the annoyance of newspaper misrepresentation, I will refuse to grant interviews, except in writing over my signature, and I request that no man theorize as to what I will or will not do.

From this date to election day I will manage the personal end of my campaign without advice or assistance from any man.

I realize the obligations I owe to the citizens who nominated me, and I will meet them as well as I am able to.

But I realize that there is less pleasure in being a dead Governor than in being a live District Attorney.

SAYS BOY WITH SUCH A FACE AS YOUNG MEIKLE COULD NOT HAVE KILLED FATHER

Physiognomist Says Face of Meikle Shows No Guilt

"I would say that I am positively disinclined to believe the possibility of any such guilt in the youth, as patricide."

J. H. P. Brown

PHYSIOGNOMIST WHO CREATED FURORE AT NEWPORT DECLARES YOUTH INNOCENT.

THAT Edgar Weston Meikle, who is in the Salem jail charged with having shot and killed his father in Lynn, about a year ago, could not posibly have committed the crime, is the liberate judgment of Professor J. H. l Brown, the man who originated the veology and eyeographs" which created ch a furore in Newport during the past mmer.

Professor Brown has made this detion after a careful investigation of boy's head from phrenological and siognomical points of view. In his itten statement which follows he tells detail how he reached his conclusions. ut one criminal indication was found the professor and that was in the apance of the ear. But he says that it is far outbalanced by the other apances.

ung Meikle is in jail and it is prob that he will have to remain there t least seven months yet. He is ing every day and is visited by his er teachers and other near friends sionally. To them he continually sts his innocence.

llowing are the deductions of Pror Brown:

By J. H. P. Brown.

In replying to your request for my opinion, phrenologically and physiognomically of Edgar Weston ikle, the boy accused of patricide, from photographs which you furnished me, I would say that I am positively disinclined to believe the possibility of any such guilt in the youth.

My estimate of him is as follows:

Physiognomically, the general form of face and features are unusually good, the superior and frontal head developments indicating sympathy, benevolence, veneration for aged as well as Creator, sensitiveness, endurance and will.

The lips show some of these characteristics also, specially the last three qualities.

The nose indicates secrecy, some delicacy and ample force of character.

The eyes tell of a fondness for poetry, language and art, broadmindedness, openheartedness and a good memory; hope held in bondage by sorrow, and threatened by despair or complete dejection.

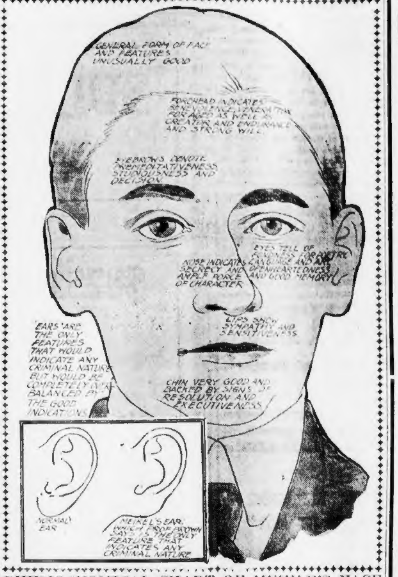
The eyebrows denote premeditativeness, studiousness and decision.

The chin is a good one and is well back by the signs of resolution and executiveness. If the top-head was flat and receded rapidly from the root of the nose, these last indications would certainly brand him as a man to beware of. Under existing developments they would be controlled by the many other good qualities described.

The ears are the only feature that would indicate any criminal nature, but the same would be so completely overbalanced by the good, as to be of little value as indications.

Phrenologically I see nothing to warrant any such suspicion as charged against him.

He is too cautious and sensitive to right, as well as kind and fond of popular favor to ever even as much as give such a terrible act a thought.



GENERAL FORM OF FACE AND FEATURES UNUSUALLY GOOD FOREHEAD INDICATES BENEVOLENCE, VENERATION FOR AGED AS WELL AS CREATOR AND ENDURANCE AND STRONG WILL EYEBROWS DENOTE PREMEDITATIVENESS STUDIOUSNESS AND DECISION
EYES TELL OF FONDNESS FOR POETRY, LANGUAGE AND ART, OPENHEARTEDNESS AND GOOD MEMORY
NOSE INDICATES SECRECY AND AMPLE FORCE OF CHARACTER
LIPS SHOW SYMPATHY AND SENSITIVENESS
EARS ARE THE ONLY FEATURES THAT WOULD INDICATE ANY CRIMINAL NATURE BUT WOULD BE COMPLETELY OVERBALANCED BY THE GOOD INDICATIONS
CHIN VERY GOOD AND BACKED BY SIGNS OF RESOLUTION AND EXECUTIVENESS
NORMAL EAR
MEIKEL'S EAR WHICH PROF. BROWN SAYS IS THE ONLY FEATURE THAT INDICATES ANY CRIMINAL NATURE

WILL SUBMIT POST-MORTEM LIGHT REPORT

Special Committee of City Council Has Final Meeting To-morrow.

TRY TO AVOID THE ISSUE

Legally defunct since September 20, the joint special committee of the City Council, alleged to be investigating municipal lighting, will meet to-morrow afternoon to draw up a post mortem statement. While any report that the committee may make has been discounted in advance, as the committee when appointed was stacked against the municipal lighting proposition, the committee itself feels that some kind of a report should be made, as all it has to show at present for the seven months' time it has been in existence is a wine bill for $300 run up at the Boston Tavern.

In all probability two separate reports will be submitted by the committee—one in favor of the establishment of a municipal lighting plant and the other, while opposed to the proposition, not stating so unequivocally, but drawn so as not to face the issue directly.

Drawing Up a Report.

A sub-committee, consisting of Aldermen Linehan, Curley, Bangs, Berwin and Draper and Councilman McCullough, is now at work drawing a report to submit to the committee of the whole to-morrow afternoon.

This sub-committee will undoubtedly submit two reports, as Aldermen Linehan and Curley and Councilman McCullough are on record as favoring the establishment of a municipal plant, while Aldermen Bangs, Berwin and Draper have been consistently opposed to municipal ownership and, in fact, owe their appointment on the committee to the fact that they were opposed to it.

The municipal lighting committee, which when appointed was so constituted that a large majority of its fifteen members would oppose any attempt to secure cheaper light for the city by the adoption of the statute providing for the acquirement of a municipal lighting plant, is now more evenly divided.

Paying Exorbitant Price.

Irrefutable facts presented to the committee, and which it could not ignore, have shown its members that the city of Boston is paying $25 per light more a year to the Edison Company than the company is charging surrounding cities and towns, and also that the city is being discriminated against to the extent that it is charged double the price for light in its public buildings that is charged to merchants whose annual bills do not equal one-half of the amount paid by the city.

These facts, which Everett W. Burdett, the able and high-salaried counsel of the lighting trust, has been compelled to admit, have convinced many members, some of whom were honestly opposed to the project at first, that the city should acquire one or more plants for the manufacture and distribution of light. It is held that at least the proposition should be submitted to the voters and this is the only effect a vote in favor in the City Council would have.

Unwilling to Trust People.

Even those members of the committee who oppose municipal ownership of lighting plants admit that the city is paying far too much for its light. Admitting this, however, they are unwilling to allow the people an opportunity to pass upon the question. Why Alderman Bangs, Bell, Draper and Berwin, and Councilmen Nichols, Noyes, Noonan and Willcutt feel that the people of Boston cannot be trusted to pass upon the question of municipal lighting, it is expected these gentlemen will state in the majority report of the committee.

HOW DRAPERS SMASHED UP LABOR UNION

Paid Spy Among Members Reported Proceedings to Hopedale Magnates.

ORGANIZER BLACKLISTED

MILFORD, Oct. 16.—An Italian branch of the Moulders' Union which was partly formed in the Draper mills last year was quickly broken up and the promoters discharged. One of the promoters was Joseph Puzzanenti, No. 32 Cedar street, who still retains the title of secretary, but who can never get another job where the hand of the Drapers enters.

Joseph Puzzanenti is a wiry, square-jawed, fearless young man, ready to sacrifice himself for his fellows and his principles and through him many of the Draper machine moulders have since received more lucrative jobs in other cities. Against the expressed fears of his mother and sister, whom he supports, Joseph talked freely to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, saying:

"Yes, I suppose I am still secretary of the Italian Branch of the Machine Moulders' Union No. 100 of Milford. It cost me my job, as it did my brother John and all the others who were active in starting the union. One of the members was in the pay of the Drapers as a spy, and he kept them posted on our names and the details.

Hoped to Better Conditions.

"Elsewhere we could get much better pay, and we expected when the union was formed to better our condition here.

"A day's work was, on the average, ten hours and a quarter, and we earned about $9 a week where the proper pay should be $12.

"They locked up our dinner pails and clothes and docked us half an hour if we lost fifteen minutes and a quarter of an hour if we lost five minutes. One could get out of prison about as easily as out of that shop unless we wanted to take the chance of being discharged.

"It was singular, too, but most every Italian found his pay a few cents short each week. It might be seven cents or eleven cents, but they were continually complaining among themselves, though not daring to go to the office about it.

"There were departments, too, in which Italians paid bosses $5, $10 and as high as $30 to get a job.

"There was a file or blacklist in the shop, and any man applying was looked up. If anything was against him he could never work in the Hopedale mills.

"I used to work for $9 a week and I made sixty looms a day and bored eight holes in each of them, and anybody will tell you that is a good day's work. The men who got $12 a week there really earned $18; those getting $10.50 earned $15, for $9 the company got the value of 12, and the poor fellows who were only paid $1 a day certainly earned as much as I was getting, $9. Think of men with families where only the man could work drawing $6 a week. I would like to hold a joint debate with one of the Drapers on these questions if they choose to dispute my words.

Dropped Members Off.

"Well, when the spy informed and we were found out to be organizing a union they began to drop our men off for all sorts of reasons. When my married brother was discharged I went in person to plead with the boss to take the men back. It did no good. My turn came later.

"I found that the men around me doing less work were getting half a dollar more a day and I spoke to the boss, who referred me to the office.

"Mr. Draper glanced me over, looked up my name and said:

"Do you know where the car track is out there in the street?"

"Of course I do."

"Well, he said, "you had better go out there and take the first car and travel in it as far as it will take you for you can never work here another day."

"I was mad and didn't care. They cannot frighten me if they do own all Milford. And I will keep taking their good men away from them and getting them better jobs elsewhere."

FIRE CAPITAL REDUCED.

The Mercantile Fire and Marine Insurance Company reduced its capital stock yesterday from $400,000 to $200,000.

FILLEY HOME ON DEVONIAN

Captain Oliver D. Filley of the Harvard crew, defeated on the Thames by Cambridge, arrived here to-day on the Leyland liner Devonian, one day late from Liverpool. The Devonian ran into westerly winds, which on last Saturday and Monday week became nothing less than gales.

"Not a word about the race," Captain Filley said smilingly to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN, "not a word. It has already been threshed out a hundred times. All that any of us can say is that the better team won, and there you are."

The Cambrian, also in to-day, had a report quite like that of Captain Trant of the Devonian.

WHITE TURKEYS IN DOCK SQUARE

It is said that there are white blackbirds and white crows. Be that as it may, there are certainly pure white turkeys, and two such birds are now attracting much attention at the store of Holmes, Luce & Co., Nos. 1-2-3 Dock square, where the prize birds are on exhibition in the window. This is the twenty-third year that this firm has given a turkey free for Thanksgiving with each range sold during the months of October and November, and these handsome birds are displayed to call the attention of the public to that fact.

MORE UNIONS LINE UP TO FIGHT AGAINST DRAPER

Resolutions condemning the candidacy of Eben S. Draper for Lieutenant-Governor and indorsing E. Gerry Brown, the trades unionist, for that office, have been adopted by four more labor organizations. They are:

Meter Makers and Repairers' Union No. 12,234, A. F. of L.
Steamfitters' Union No. 22.
Paperhangers' Union No. 258.
Cooks' Union No. 328.

Meter Makers and Repairers' Union.

The Meter Makers' Union, at a large and enthusiastic meeting in Phenix Hall, adopted resolutions unanimously condemning the employment of Chinese labor, Governor Guild and Lieutenant-Governor Draper, and indorsing the candidacy of John B. Moran for Governor and E. Gerry Brown for Lieutenant-Governor. The resolutions are as follows:

Resolved, That we, the members of Meter Makers and Repairers' Union No. 12,234, A. F. of L., condemn the action of the Federal Government in employing Chinese labor in the construction of the Panama Canal; and be it further

Resolved, That we condemn the past acts and attitude of Governor Guild, and especially Lieutenant-Governar Eben S. Draper, in regard to labor union interests; and be it further

Resolved, That we indorse the candidacy of John B. Moran for Governor and E. Gerry Brown, a staunch champion of union labor, for Lieutenant-Governor.

Steamfitters' Union.

Steamfitters, Union No. 22, at a well attended meeting at the hall of the Building Trades Council, No. 18 Kneeland street, passed the following resolutions without a dissenting vote:

Whereas, Eben S. Draper, the Republican candidote for Lieutenant-Governor, has proved himself to be a foe of organized labor in the conduct of his factory at Hopedale; and

Whereas, The Independence League and Democratic party have nominated for that high office a man who has been a trades unionist for years; therefore, be it

Resolved. That each member of Steamfitters' Union No. 22 appoint himself a committe of one to further the candidacy of E. Gerry Brown for Lieutenant-Governor.

Paperhangers' Union.

Eben S. Draper was placed in the same class as David N. Parry of the Employers' Association in his antagonism to union labor by Paperhangers' Union No. 258 at a meeting in Harmony Hall, No. 724 Washington street. Draperism was condemned by several speakers. The following resolutions were adopted unanimously:

Whereas, It is the opinion of the members of Paperhangers' Union No. 258 that a trades unionist should as soon cast his ballot for David N. Parry of the Employers' Association as for Eben S. Draper, the Republican candidate for Lieutenant-Governor; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we do our utmost to bring about the defeat of this bitter antagonist of union labor and vote for E. Gerry Brown, the trades union candidate on the Democratic and Independence League tickets.

Cooks' Union.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at a meeting of Cooks' Union No. 328 in Cupid Hall, No. 724 Washington street:

Resolved, That we, the members of Cooks' Union No. 328, indorse the actin of the State branch, A. F. of L., convention, held recently at Lawrence, in its condemnation of Eben S. Draper, Republican candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and do our utmost to place in that office E. Gerry Brown, who carries a trades union card and who has long been an earnest advocate of laibor organizing to better its conditions.

DENY FRAUDS IN LABOR VOTE

"In two days official announcement of the result of the recent balloting of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union for general officers will be made, and until then nothing definite can be given out on the allegations of fraud and repeating in the vote."

Such was the official statement given by General Secretary C. L. Baine at the international headquarters of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, No. 246 Summer street, to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day. He continued:

"I wish to deny the wide-circulated report that irregularities have already been found in the ballots. Such statements are myths, for the ballot inspectors have not made their report, and it is impossible for any one to make such a statement with any degree of veracity.

A NOTED AUTHOR.

And lecturer, whose book on Hygiene has been received with much favorable comment throughout the country, Recommends the Osmo-Chemic New Light Treatment, which she has found wonderfully beneficial in her own case.

Mrs. Corrilla Banister, author of the book "Self Building," that has received so much favorable comment from the press of the entire country, is also the author of "A Modern Miracle," and is well and favoraby known as a reader of negro dialect stories. Her permanent address is 93 Federal street, Boston, Mass., in care of her publishers, Lothrop, Lee & Shepard. Mrs. Banister studied hygiene for Self Building, as she terms it, for ten years, and is consequently able to speak as an authority on that subject. She says: "Suffering from eye strain from too close application to my work of writing, I applied to the Osmo-Chemic Physicians for relief. They treated me with their New Light treatment and I found that it not only relieved my eyes and permitted me to finish my book without further inconvenience, but I found to my surprise that my brain was stimulated into greater activity and I was able to think clearly and work without fatigue. Their treatment has my enthusiastic approval. I know it makes and keep people younger. Keeps the lines of care from the face. I speak of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians and their methods wherever opportunity affords, I feel that they are doing a great and good work among self-respecting and self-sustaining sick people. Their skill and experience in the practice of their chosen profession make them worthy of the largest fees, but they are content to take [illegible] treatment that can be procured."

ABDOMINAL TUMOR CURED.

The Simple Statement of Mrs. Emery Reads Like a Tale of the Days of Miracles.

Mrs. Annie M. Emery, who resides at East Haverhill, Mass., P. O. Box 19, an earnest Christian whose word is accepted by those who know her as beyond dispute, writes the following testimonial of her experience with the modern medical methods of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians: "Seven years ago I was sick. Seven different physicians, among them the examining physician at the Massachusetts General Hospital, diagnosed my trouble as a fibroid tumor of the abdomen. They told me nothing could cure me but a surgical operation. I heard of others suffering as I was who had been cured painlessly and quickly by the Osmo-Chemic Physicians and I had them treat me. After a course of treatment extending over a period of seven months I was cured. That was in July of 1901. Since then not a trace of my former trouble has ever returned and I remain one of the grateful ones who were cured by the Osmo-Chemic Physicians.

HEARST'S FIGHT FOR BETTER WAGES FOR POSTAL WORKERS WON

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—After a battle of years, in which W. R. Hearst in Congress and his newspapers throughout the country fought steadily for living salaries for the postoffice employes, the Government has decided that wages in that department must be raised.

Yesterday First Assistant Postmaster-General Frank Hitchcock came to New York, and, after a prolonged conference with Postmaster Willcox announced that the Postoffice Department had decided to regrade the salary system throughout the country, affecting clerks and carriers alike, but particularly increasing the wages of all who are receiving less than $1,200 a year.

DIVORCE HELD UP BY ERRORS IN THE PAPERS

Judge White, at Hearing, Emphasizes Importance of Being Exact.

MUST REPEAT TESTIMONY

For the guidance and benefit of lawyers and the unhappy husbands and wives they are representing at the present term of the Suffolk County Divorce Court, Judge White, who is presiding over the October session, to-day emphasized the importance of being exact.

All the testimony in the uncontested suit of Caroline A. Roberts against Albert Henry Roberts, formerly a policeman of Chelsea, had been heard, and the judge was on the point of rendering decision when he noticed that on the marriage certificate the name of Mrs. Roberts was written "Carrie," whereas on the libel it was spelled out "Caroline." Furthermore, the libel suit stated that the date of the marriage was February 11, 1871. The marriage certificate made the date of the ceremony one day later.

These discrepancies halted the granting of the decree which Mrs. Roberts would no doubt have received. Now the papers must be amended so as to conform with the facts, new affidavits must be drawn and vital portions of the testimony rehearsed.

Married in Chelsea thirty-five years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Roberts have not lived together for the last fifteen years. Nor have they written or spoken to each other in all that time. Five children were born to them.

For twenty years they lived in harmony. Then trouble arose over a suitor for the hand of one of their daughters. In 1891 Mr. Roberts unceremoniously left home for New York. He never returned.

NEWS OF THE THEATRES

"A Social Whirl," which returned to Boston last evening at the Boston Theatre, is one round of pleasure. Adele Ritchie, Maud Raymond, Ada Lewis, Charles J. Ross and all the original company, with one exception, are with it this year, but the piece seems brighter and more catchy than before. It is enough to make one dizzy with its cyclone of fun.

It seems as though all the Georges Mills Summer folk were at the Globe Theatre last evening to welcome Billy B. Van in his new play, "Patsy in Politics." Rose Beaumont, Clem Bevins, J. Hooker Wright and as fine a dancing chorus as was ever seen here furnish the inspiration. There are lots of bright musical pieces.

George Evans, "Honey Boy," in new monologues, Master Gabriel and George Ali in a new "Buster" and "Tige" sketch; the "Globe Girdlers," the Mysterious Howards and a big list of vaudeville headliners furnish the bill at Keith's this week.

At the Orpheum the feature is Le Domino Rouge, the beautiful dancer who wears a red mask. Her mirror dance is very artistic. Other features are Murphy and Nichols in "From Zaza to Uncle Tom," Harry Vokes and Margaret Daly Vokes in a new sketch, Joe Flynn, the Grand Opera Trio, Pat Rooney and Marion Bent.

John Craig and his company won an unqualified success in "Peaceful Valley," Sol Smith Russell's famous comedy, at the Bijou last evening. Mary Young, Mary Sanders and Thomas MacLarnie were the principal factors aside from Mr. Craig. Next week comes "Incog."

Back to Hoyt comedies went the Castle Square company last night, putting on "A Temperance Town" in excellent style. Mr. Johnson played Mink Jones, Mr. Albion the Bingo, and Mr. Waldron was a fine clergyman. Miss Lasche played the role of Ruth.

Five of the local theatres were held by plays which continued and immense houses were the rule. At the Tremont the tuneful DeKoven-Ranken-Stange opera, "The Student King," began its next to last week; at the Park the Klein comedy, "The Lion and the Mouse," began its sixth week; at the Colonial Fritzi Scheff and her "Mlle. Modiste" entered upon its last week, while at the Hollis Sam Bernard continued his hit in "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer." At the Majestic David Warfield played "The Music Master" to an audience that crowded the orchestra under the stage.

Pictures of the Gans-Nelson fight were shown at the Howard last evening. Nothing was omitted from the actual occurrences, and Jack Sheehan gave a breezy description of the events. The rest of the bill was up to the standard of the Howard.

Harry Bryant's splendid company of comedians and girls began a week's engagement at the Palace yesterday. Edith Bryant heads the list and the olio portion is the best yet.

At the Columbia, the week's bill is the Rialto Rounders, with Sam Howe at their head. There is a new olio, at the top of which is a series of living pictures. To-night comes the big cake walk as an added feature.

"Jim Bludso," with a new star at its head, is the attraction at the Bowdoin Square Theatre this week. Alexander Gaden is the newcomer, and a big house welcomed him last evening. "Jim Bludso" is a thrilling melodrama of the South before the war.

Princess Rajah, bright star in "The Dream of the Orient," gives a thrilling act at Austin & Stone's this week, revolving over a hundred times several times a day. There are a lot of other features, including Trixie, the python charmer, just returned from her vacation.

Merry satire is the event at the Lyceum this week, for Charlie Waldron's Trocadero Burlesquers are there in "The Misfit Family" and "Fun in the Hotel Astorbilt." Frank Graham has the leading comedy role.

LOAN ORDER TURNED DOWN

The Board of Aldermen have put over for a week Mayor Fitzgerald's loan order calling for $250,000 for street improvements. At a meeting of the board yesterday six Democratic aldermen voted for a passage of the bill and six Republicans voted to kill it. Alderman Baldwin, Democrat, did not vote on the order, although he did vote later in favor of assigning the matter for a week later. Nine votes are required to give the bill a passage.

URGE POPE TO APPEAR IN ROME

Special Cable to Boston American.

ROME, Oct. 16.—The Pope is being again urged to make a brief journey from the Vatican in an attempt to establish a better understanding with the Italian government.

The occasion is ready to hand, for the advocates of the step are constantly urging Pope Pius to preside at the ceremony to be held next December, in connection with the removal of the remains of the late Pope Leo XIII. from St. Peter's Church to the San Giovanni Lateran Church, and to appear publicly in the streets of Rome on this occasion.

If Pope Pius consents the step will be of great political significance to nearly every country in Europe, as it will break a long established precedent.

WOMAN DYING FROM WOUNDS BY HUSBAND

The tragedy is the sad ending of a Maine lakeside romance, which was followed by an elopement. McEwan is now held on a charge of assault with intent to kill. If the woman dies, he will have to face a charge of deliberate murder. He was taken to Police Headquarters to-day and cross-examined by Captain Dugan.

As he was being taken to the captain's room he was met by his mother, Mrs. Mary Merrill, of No. 136 Jackson street, Lawrence. With tears streaming down her face Mrs. Merrill clasped her son in her arms.

"Oh, Alex—Alex!" she sobbed.

McEwan Weak and Scared.

The young man was very weak and much frightened. He had not been able to speak and appeared on the verge of collapse. After he had made a full statement of the matter to Captain Dugan he was measured by the Bertillon system.

CHILDREN OF 'LIGHT' STARVED TO DEATH?

Charges Made Against the "Brotherhood" Colony on Colorado Ranch.

DENVER, Oct. 16.—That a dozen children entrusted to the "Brotherhood of Light" by the Denver authorities have starved to death is the direct charge of the State Humane Society.

The "Brotherhood of Light" colony is located on a ranch 400 miles southwest of Denver, and is in charge of C. C. Rose and others, who send solicitors over the State to gather funds to support the orphans which it makes a specialty of boarding. Of twenty children in the custody of the brotherhood only seven are alive. The older of the survivors are in the fields with the adults.

Prescribe Peculiar Diet.

It is charged by Secretary E. K. Whitehead, of the State Bureau of Child and Animal Protection; H. B. Kerr, agent of the Bureau, and Dr. M. H. Sears, of the State Bureau of Health, that all the children who have died at the colony have starved to death as a result of the peculiar diet, on the vegetarian order, that the religion of the brotherhood prescribes for all who would be "holy."

At least three of the children were committed to the colony by Judge Ben B. Lindsey of the Juvenile Court, who acted in the face of the most strenuous objections from Secretary Whitehead, and after Judge McCall of the same court had refused to commit them.

No Physician Called In.

Men of means and prominence have from time to time donated large sums of money to the brotherhood, and have also lent their influence to help to procure children.

It is charged by the investigators that C. C. Rose, a long-haired "prophet," has treated all cases of illness among the children, getting his medical advice from a book, no physician ever being called in.

20 DEAD, 20 INJURED IN COLLISION

Passenger and Freight Trains Crash Head-On Near St. Petersburg.

Special Cable to Boston American.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 16.—At least twenty persons killed and as many more fatally injured, say reports from Oka, is the result of a head-on collision between a passenger and freight train.

Ten bodies already have been removed from the debris.

It is believed that nearly all the passengers on one train, the other being a freight, were burned under the wreckage. Most of the bodies taken out are charred beyond hope of identification.

How the wreck occurred is not known. Both trains were going at a good rate of speed when suddenly they crashed near Oka. The passenger train was almost completely destroyed by the wreck and subsequent fire.

10,000 DEAD BY TYPHOON

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 16.—News of the great typhoon in the neighborhood of Hong Kong have just reached here in the trans-Pacific mails and it is learned that at least ten thousand persons were killed.

Twenty-four Europeans were killed, but the loss of life was mostly among the water front population.

660,000 ON NEWYORK LISTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Total registration, which closed last night, as officially announced to-day, is 660,210. In 1905 it was 643,505, and in 1904, 688,352. The increase of 17,000 is regarded as only normal, and the forecasters figure that at least 50,000 men entitled to vote failed to register. With the registration of 660,000 the probable vote is estimated at 620,000.

TRIED TO SLAY WIFE, SAY JURY

The jury in the case of Robert H. Long of Chelsea, on trial for assault with intent to murder his wife, Jennie C. Long, in Chelsea Square, August 28, reported a verdict of guilty yesterday afternoon, and the prisoner was remanded to await sentence. The jury was out two hours.

The trial of Long began Friday and several witnesses besides his wife testified against him.

MRS. INGERSOLL LOSES HER CASE

The efforts of Mrs. Eva Ingersoll, widow of Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, to recover a fee of $100,000 promised her husband for breaking the will of Andrew J. Davis of Montana and Massachusetts, were defeated in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to-day. Judges Colt and Lowell decided against Mrs. Ingersoll, while Judge Aldrich dissented from their opinion.

Mrs. Ingersoll sued Joseph Coram and others. She won in the Circuit Court and the case was appealed.

Robert G. Ingersoll was promised in writing a fee of $100,000 by two of the heirs if he succeeded in breaking the will filed in Montana by John A. Davis, to whom was left nearly all the millions of Andrew J. Davis. The jury disagreed and there was a compromise between the heirs. Ingersoll got $5,000. He died soon after the case was settled, and his widow began suit.

HANDS BANDAGED EIGHT WEEKS

With Bad Case of Eczema—Treatment by Three Doctors Made Them Worse—Grateful New Hampshire Lady Says: "No Matter How Long Any One Has Suffered with Eczema

"CUTICURA REMEDIES WILL CURE IT"

"Three years ago this summer I had a very bad case of eczema in my hands. They were so bad I had to keep them bandaged for eight weeks. I had four different doctors. The first three made them worse. The last one helped them for a little while, but the next summer they broke out worse than ever; and as I had seen Cuticura advertised in the papers a great deal, I thought I would try it. I took the complete treatment of Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills. Before I had used one box of Ointment my hands were all smooth again, and now I am doing all the work for four and my hands are all free from eczema, and I cannot say too much in praise for Cuticura. My hair was falling out fast and a few applications of the Ointment stopped it. If there is any part of this letter that would be the means of others trying Cuticura, I am willing you should publish it; as I would like others to be cured as I was; for no matter how long any one has suffered with eczema, Cuticura Remedies will cure it. Yours truly, Mrs. Leon J. Hoyt, Box 402, Bristol, N. H., July 18, 1905."

ITCHING ECZEMA

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of scalp, as in scalled head; all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills are such, stands proven beyond all doubt.

HARVARD HAS LIGHT PRACTICE

Light signal practice was all the Harvard candidates were allowed to tackle yesterday. A little charging and breaking through by the ends helped pass the afternoon.

A. V. Kidd, a candidate for center, reported yesterday for the first time. Two new coaches, Malcolm Donald and Crawford Blagden, were on the field assisting Coach Reid, who will report daily.

Nate Hall, who received an injury to his hip in Saturday's game, was out in togs, but could do little more than walk around. Bartall Parker was not out, owing to minor injuries received Saturday, but will be seen in togs in a day or two.

No tackling-the-dummy practice was given the men, nor was the forward pass tried; they were coached more on the rudiments of the game and then given a run around the field a few times.

A ten-minute scrimmage took place between the varsity substitutes and the second team, in which time neither scored. The scrimmage was marked by frequent fumbles and ragged playing throughout. The substitutes had the best of the play and would have scored had the time been long enough. Nothing but straight line plunging and quarter-back kicks were used, the latter being the better of the two. Neither side could gain consistently.

BULLDOG SHOW AT ALLSTON A SUCCESS

The centre of attraction in Allston yesterday was the French bulldog show, as from the time of the opening of the hall till closing up time the place was packed with interested spectators. On all sides were heard comments from fanciers about the excellency of the exhibition. Imported Frenchies and home-bred ones filled the kennels allotted, and in order to carry off a prize a dog had to be not only royally bred, but about perfection in his conformation and points.

Unfortunately, S. L. Goldenberg of New York was unable to fill his position of judge, as he had promised. He wired early in the day that a cablegram from England had informed him of his son's serious illness, and he was immediately taking a steamer to go to him. In his place was Harry Lacey of the Stockkeeper, and so far as he could be heard his awarding of the prizes was very satisfactory.

During the afternoon A. A. Smith, vice-president of the French Bulldog Club, under whose auspices the show was held, bought of C. C. Keans the two-year-old dog Dewey, by Renault, Jr., out of Babbette. Dewey won first prize in the open class for dogs bred by exhibitor over a large field, a number of which were older dogs than he. Several other sales were reported in the evening.

Brackenside Prince, exhibited by Mrs. E. W. Bright, took away several firsts in the classes for American bred and dogs twenty-two pounds and over, etc. Secretary W. H. Smythe's imported Robespierre secured the cup in the open class for dogs under twenty-two pounds. In all eighteen classes competition was exceedingly close.

The show was held in the carriage part of A. A. Smith's stable, which was handsomely dressed in colors for the occasion. So sucessful was the initial show of the club, which comprises about sixty members, that another year larger quarters will be secured. None of the officials had the faintest idea that there would be so much enthusiasm shown, it being in the line of an experiment. The result demonstrates the affair has come to be an annual fixture in dog shows hereabouts.

CORBETT SURE HE CAN BEAT M'GOVERN

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—No recent fight in the East has created so much interest in ring affairs as the coming match between Terry McGovern and Young Corbett, which is scheduled to be pulled off before the National A. C. at Philadelphia to-morrow night. Both the boys have been working hard in preparation for the battle, and will enter the ring fit for fast going.

There is apparently more in the fight for McGovern than for his opponent. Terry, by being put to sleep twice in his past meetings with Corbett, has become imbued with the idea that it will be his one duty on earth to retrieve for those two defeats. Consequently he has put his whole heart into his work at Johnson's roadhouse, Jerome avenue, and he thinks that by now he can hand Corbett the same dose that he had to take himself on the two previous occasions.

Young Corbett's hard practice has been done at Stratford, Ct., far from the temptations of the Great White Way. He looks very chubby at present, but he still sticks to the old assertion that McGovern is a fighter who was made especially for him to knock out. He thinks that he will even be able to land Terry again this time, although he has but six rounds in which to do it.

ARMOUR AFTER TOLEDO CLUB

DETROIT, Oct. 16.—Bill Armour has an option on the Toledo team, and is now in Toledo conferring with the present owners of the franchise. The deal by which Bill will become an American Association magnate is likely to be closed most any day, according to dispatches from Toledo.

If Armour swings the deal, J. Ed Grillo will undoubtedly retire form all connection with the Toledo team.

Suggested That in Future Big Auto Races That ARMY GUARD CUP COURSE

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Again has the talk about a private course for racing purposes come to the surface. This time, however, there seems to be sufficient backing behind the talk to make the construction of such a course not only practicable but likewise most possible and probable. The accidents of the recent Vanderbilt were in no way due to the carelessness of the operators. In each and every instance they were due entirely to the great curiosity of the persons injured, who ventured out in the very face of danger.

The policing of the course was the best that could be done under the circumstances. Deputy sheriffs who say "Please step back" can no more command a crowd than can a tin soldier. And yet those were the kind of officers the Vanderbilt Commission had forced upon it for the work of policing the course at both the elimination and final.

Army Guards Course.

Abroad they do things different. There the army is turned out to guard the course. And it is guarded. Here in America it has been found possible to detail naval vessels to guard the course of an international yacht race. Why then should it not be possible to secure some portion of the standing army to patrol and guard the course of an international automobile race? They are both of the same general character, sporting events. They each tend to enhance the value and prestige of their particular line of industry. The only difference is that the automobile is greater than the yachting industry.

Failing to secure a detail from the army it would seem possible under certain concessions of the sheriffs of the several counties on Long Island to secure the services of a military regiment, the same being paid for by the cup commission, just as is the services of the special deputies for that day. The only difference there would be would be in a reduction in the amount of tribute paid directly into the coffers of the residents of Long Island and the possible saving of life and limb. This latter consideration surpasses all others.

No race of whatever character is worth the loss of a single human life. Life is too valuable to be offered up as a sacrifice on the altar of sport. Unfortunately, however, it does become a victim of sport, not only of motor, but of every single branch of sport or pastime. Motoring has no special claim as a man-killer.

Lancia of the Fiat team expresses the opinion that although France won the last Vanderbilt the race next year will be held in this country. Lancia is perfectly logical in this idea, and his expression of opinion is very similar to that of most foreigners. He says:

"There is not much chance of the race being run anywhere except in America. Neither France nor Italy will undertake the task of holding the race, for the simple reason that it is an advantage to them in the matter of trade to have it run here. A win on this side, where they are attempting to sell their cars in competition with the American product, will do them far more good than a win abroad."

While ninety-two cars, valued at $331,782, were imported into the United States during August of last year, the imports for August this year fell to eighty-three machines, valued at $299,979. In August, 1905, the automobile parts brought into this country were valued at $30,400 and in the corresponding month this year parts were imported which were valued at $23,400. It is interesting to note that 228 American made automobiles, valued at $421,220, were exported from the United States during August of this year, while the value of parts sent abroad the same month reach $45,011. In 1905 the total value of the automobiles and parts exported during August was $200,853. During the eight months ended August last the exports of cars and parts were valued at $3,336,420, as compared with $2,041,134 during the corresponding period in 1905 and $1,322,499 for the first eight months of 1904. During August of this year the shipments of cars and parts were destined as follows: United Kingdom, $122,630; France, $15,250; Germany, $7,569; Italy, $1,125; other European countries, $7,280; British North America, $150,210; Mexico, $203,498; West Indies and Bermuda, $12,159; South America, $12,093; British East Indies, $2,228; British Australasia, $11,124; other Asia and Oceania, $20,000; all other countries, $1,866.

Dogs and Dog Fanciers.

It is the intention of Eddie Rice to go into the breeding of Boston terriers as heavily as he has engaged in the race horse line the past few years. Considering that when he had his eye on a fast horse no price would stop him, his addition to the ranks of owners and breeders of dogs must be invaluable. A few days since he bred Miss Rice, that was sired by Ed. Beasley's Boston terrier, to Champion Tosco. He hopes to be able to exhibit the puppies at the coming show in Mechanics Building in November.

The Toy Spaniel Club is to hold its annual show on November 6 and 7 in New York, which is somewhat earlier than last year. In place of only prize cups, as was the case last year, the club will offer cash for the prizes. It is anticipated this move will result in a much greater entry list, while the gate receipts will show a corresponding increase.

The most wonderful of all Collie sires, Ch. Southport Sculptor, is at death's door, and will likely never be seen in a show ring again. He is the property of Samuel Untermyer, Yonkers, N. Y.

James S. Bechtold of Philadelphia has bought of A. W. Vowles, Manchester, England, the brindle and white bulldog, Old Mill Crib. He is an exceptional dog, of heavy bone, grand front and a head of perfection. He tips the beam at fifty-two pounds.

* * *

There are times when it is hard to even give away a good dog. Tom B. Middlebrooke of Boston hardly wanted to give away his collie, Southport Seabright, but was willing to let him go to the person sending in the highest bid. He still has the collie, as there were no bids.

Dr. H. E. Bonnyman of East Boston is having great success with Boston Bunty. Recently he has been bred to the famous Mandy Lee, Roxana, Molly, Dods, Nell, Baby Island, Lucile and Trouble.

A recent sale of note was the Boston terrier, Combustion, by H. S. Dakin of Worcester to Dr. D. J. Smith, Claremont, N. H. He is a very finely bred dog and has many fine qualities.

A valuable feature of the Boston Terrier Record is publishing the registrations for each month, which should keep the Boston pedigrees clean. It, too, gives the opportunity for the readers to "jump on" all pedigrees that are not accurate.

Clair Foster is in England making a study of the bull terrier. While the best judges of these dogs on this side have faith in their knowledge yet it must not be forgotten that the English bull terrier man knows a little something of the good old breed that we could learn a good deal about.

Numerous fanciers have desired to get a glimpse of Mrs. George Gould's bulldog, Heath Baronet, for which Mr. Gould paid the stated sum of $5,000, but the animal has been on private view only.

Thomas E. L. Kemp, owner of the Carmen Kennels in Dorchester, is happy as a lark these days, and all through the arrival of a fine litter of puppies by King Carmen ex Carmen's Lady Agnes. It is needless to say they are of the St. Bernard breed, Mr. Kemp's favorite in the canine world.

CHICAGO FANS WILL PARADE WITH PLAYERS

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—From the preparations now under way, the reception for the Cubs and the White Sox given at the Coliseum October 20 by the Intercity Baseball Association will be the biggest affair of its kind ever held in any city. Of course it is just and proper that it should be, for when did any city ever have a monopoly on a world's championship series as has Chicago this year?

The committee in charge of the reception is busy arranging the affair. A monster parade of the fans of Chicago will be held on that day and it is estimated that fully 20,000 will be in line. Already the committee has been promised that more than 200 automobiles will be there, and the State street merchants are planning to put floats in the parade to show their loyalty to the Chicago teams.

Mayor Dunne and other prominent city and State officials have been invited and will in all likelihood be on hand with speeches, etc., lauding the players.

A beautiful souvenir programme containing the pictures of both teams, with a history of the pennant race in both leagues, and other features is being prepared. The tickets of admission will each bear a voting coupon, which the holder can cast for his favorite player, and the man receiving the highest number of votes will be given a prize of $100 in gold.

It is at this reception that the world's trophy cup given by the fans of Chicago will be presented to the White Sox.

SULLOWAY IS CHAMPION.

F. J. Sulloway, 3L., won the individual tennis championship of Harvard University yesterday by defeating J. H. Chase, 1G., in three straight sets, 6—2, 6—4, 6—3, on Holmes Field. Sulloway played the best all-round game, but Chase was much steadier.

WELTERS CLASH AT CHELSEA

A ring battle which will be the limit for slugging is scheduled to-night at the Lincoln A. C., when Honey Mellody and Joe Walcott face each other to decide which is the better fighter.

It is a rare treat for the fans when such a pair of slashing welterweights get inside the ropes to show their battle, and the style of each is too well known to need any guesswork as to the way they will acquit themselves in the ring.

Both depend on their haymakers to bring the award without any fancy clevering, and it will be a case of who can get home first with the knockout punch.

Walcott's title of champion of his class was never in greater danger of being demolished, as he goes against a fighter who can hit as hard as himself and has youth and vitality besides exceptional gameness. In some of his bouts he has been put nearly out, only to come back and beat his man.

He is more brilliant than Walcott in his mode of attack, and it remains to be seen what effect it will have on the Black Demon.

His speed is remarkable, and he will cut the pace out from the start with the intention of sweeping Black Joe off his feet before he has a chance to deliver some of his deadly ammunition.

When it comes to a jabbing duel Mellody should have the best of it, and he may be able to keep Walcott away sufficiently to get a chance to use his right hand to better advantage.

Walcott's game will be to get in close and hammer on Mellody's body with the object of weakening him, as he has done to all of his opponents, and once in that state it is an easy matter for him to swing over to the jaw.

To the fans who feast on a slugging contest this one is bound to satisfy the most rabid, as it is due to be a whirlwind affair full of the hottest kind of milling.

Walcott will enter the ring the favorite, as he should with his excellent showing lately and his greater experience, while a victory for Mellody would create considerable surprise, but he is a fighter who always has a chance no matter who his antagonist may be.

Two excellent eight-round bouts will precede the star event. The opening one, which will go on at 8 p. m. prompt, will witness Billy Glover of South Boston facing Tom Sullivan of Roxbury, while in the other bout young Cahill of Roxbury will meet Johnny Sheehan of the South End. Captain Bill Daly will act as referee.

KERSBURG WON THROW.

The second of a series of three shot putting and hammer throwing contests was held on Soldiers Field yesterday afternoon. In the hammer throw, H. E. Kersburg, '07, won first from scratch with a throw of 141 ft. 7 in.; H. M. Gilmore was second with a 20-foot handicap; B. T. Stephenson third with a 40-foot handicap.

The shot putting contest was won by R. G. Kendick (4 ft.); second, B. T. Stephenson (scratch); third, C. C. Little (4 ft.). Distance—41 ft. 9 in.

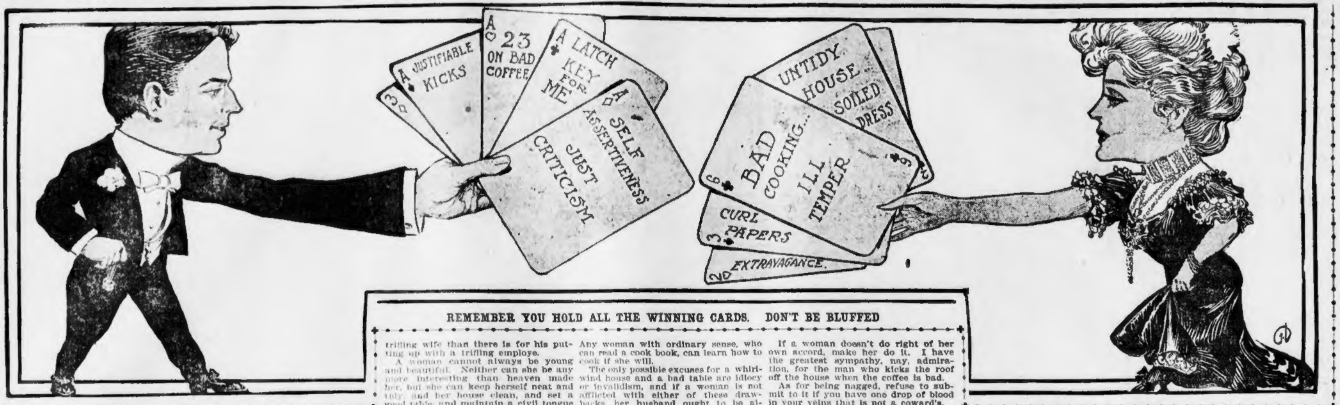
Every Woman Can Be Bluffed by a Man if He but Plays a Bold Game From the Very Start of the Uncertain Game of Matrimony

DOROTHY DIX TELLS HOW TO MANAGE A WIFE



REMEMBER YOU HOLD ALL THE WINNING CARDS. DON'T BE BLUFFED

BY DOROTHY DIX

WHEN you marry, son, every other problem in the world will sink into innocuous desuetude before the burning question of how to manage a wife.

You will observe, in casting an anxious eye around among your friends, that it is the one conundrum before which the mighty masculine intellect has simply thrown up its hands and taken the count.

You will see generals of the army, and mighty admirals of the navy, and ordinary citizens who wear life-saving medals, and who never batted an eye in the face of danger and death, tremble and turn pale with fear when a little five-foot woman, with a hatchet face, rasps out, "John," in a buzz-saw voice.

You will see men who make laws for millions of people have their entire method of life regulated by the ignorant woman they are married to.

You will see men who settle the finances of the nation perfectly helpless before their wives' bills.

You will see men bold enough everywhere else, who do not dare to bring a friend home to dinner, or to smoke in their own parlor, or to go downtown of an evening without inventing a thousand lies to cover their sneak.

You wonder why this is, and how you may avoid such a fate. It is dead easy.

Don't Allow It

BEGIN by getting away on the right foot. The matrimonial race to the executive chair belongs to the one who reaches it first.

Every man has a right to a wife who is neat, industrious, thrifty and decently amiable, and he ought to frame his demands along with the marriage certificate, and hang it over his bride's dressing table where she can't fail to see it every time she looks in the glass.

As a matter of fact, there is no more reason for a man to put up with a trifling wife than there is for his putting up with a trifling employe.

A woman cannot always be young and beautiful. Neither can she be any more interesting than heaven made her, but she can keep herself neat and tidy, and her house clean, and set a good table, and maintain a civil tongue in her head if she is required to, and while these may not represent the highest spirit of connubial bliss, no marriage is wholly a failure that provides a man with a comfortable home.

Begin, then, while Maud is still deeply, desperately in love with you and ready to break her neck to please you, by giving the curl paper and wrapper habit the double cross.

Tell her gently but firmly that frowsy females have no attraction for you, and that unless she thinks it worth while to dress for dinner for you, you will seek the society of some lady who does.

Ground for Divorce

THE man who fires a shot at a woman's vanity hits the bull's eye every time, and a husband has only to be discreet enough to praise his wife's appearance when she is dressed up, and to betray a slight disgust of her when she isn't, to confirm in her a habit of tidiness that nothing in the world can break.

As for housekeeping, a man has only himself to blame if everything is always at sixes and sevens, and he acquires dyspepsia through bad cooking. Any woman with ordinary sense, who can read a cook book, can learn how to cook if she will.

The only possible excuses for a whirlwind house and a bad table are idiocy or invalidism, and if a woman is not afflicted with either of these drawbacks, her husband ought to be allowed to return her to her parents if she sets before him badly cooked food in a dirty house.

It is because husbands condone their wives defaulting on their part of the marriage contract that so many poor, forlorn, domestic married men are forced to live around in boarding houses or hotels, or dwell in homes whose dirt and mismanagement fill them with perpetual disgust.

Bad housekeeping ought to be made a cause for divorce just as much as drunkenness.

Demand Silence

I SAY again that the remedy for this lies in the husband's hand. Begin your married life, son, by forcing your wife to play fair with you, and do her part of the work of making a home as well as you do yours.

Women almost invariably live up to their blue china, and toe up to the mark that they are expected to reach.

I have never yet known a man who was fussy about what he ate whose wife didn't develop into a notable housekeeper, nor one who was prim and precise whose better half didn't sweep under the beds.

If a woman doesn't do right of her own accord, make her do it. I have the greatest sympathy, nay, admiration, for the man who kicks the roof off the house when the coffee is bad.

As for being nagged, refuse to submit to it if you have one drop of blood in your veins that is not a coward's.

It's all nonsense for a woman to say that she cannot control her temper. She did before you married her, or else she would never be writing Mrs. before her name instead of Miss.

The best way to deal with a scold is to get mad first, and get so much madder than she does that you frighten her into silence.

Don't Be a Bankrupt

IN domestic extremities of this kind men have the advantage on account of having a stronger vocabulary at their command. It is the difference between going into action with a pop gun loaded with birdshot and a gatling gun full of scrap iron, and victory lies with the heavy artillery.

Men profess themselves to be unable to cope with their wives' extravagance. It is the confession of a weakling.

From the day that you are married, son, take your wife into business partnership with you.

Explain just how much you make and how you make it, your reasons for economy, and talk over with her what expenditures she may indulge in, and how to get the most out of what she spends.

If she is the right sort of a woman, and the kind that ninety-nine out of a hundred wives are, you will never have cause for complaint about her extravagance.

But if you have been fool enough to marry a fool woman, don't be fool enough to let her ruin you.

If she wastes the money on chiffon fans that ought to have paid the rent, if she goes into debt for fifty-dollar hats when a five-dollar one was all she could afford, if she runs up bills that keep your nose to the grindstone, take the purse out of her hand.

Have a Latchkey

BUY her what she needs, and tell her that if she runs a dressmaker's bill you will notify merchants that you will not be responsible for them. If that doesn't bring her to her senses nothing will, and in any event you will save yourself from bankruptcy.

Of course, in the majority of cases, no such strenuous measures are necessary to manage a wife. Nowhere else does the law of love become the law of the land as in matrimony.

There are very few wives who will not work themselves to death and become humble slaves to husbands who treat them with tenderness and affection and consideration.

So, son, if you marry a good woman love her up to her bent.

Tell her that she grows younger and prettier every day; that her pies surpass your mother's; that you'd be in the poorhouse but for her management, and that her disposition is as soft and gentle as an angel.

So shall you secure to yourself a helpmate who is willing to work her fingers to the bone to please you, who pares the potato skins to save, and who is afraid to say a cross word lest she topples off her pedestal.

But if you marry a Tartar deal with her on the Tartar basis, and do it first.

Also, remember for your comfort that Benedick tamed Beatrice by this method, and that every woman can be bluffed by the man who takes a bold stand.

And a last word, son, assert your right to a latchkey from the start and refuse to be catechised. If you do you are lost. And a henpecked man is a sorry spectacle, son.

Girls, Avoid That Air of Superiority

WHEN a girl arrives at the border line which tells her that she has reached the entrance to the fuller life with all its possibilities and care, it is apt to make her feel stand-offish and proud.

She thinks contemptuously of older companions of her childhood; she sees their married life with its lack of money, its monotony and privations, and, tossing her head, says to herself: "I'll not be silly and wed for love only!" She has neglected to notice the happy light shining in their eyes, and the peaceful atmosphere of their homes.

Consequently she wraps herself in a mantle of aloofness to commence her journey through life—passing by those who would fain be true friends and companions, because their social position is not up to the standard she requires, or their clothes not quite fashionably cut.

It may be also that her general aloofness and reserve spring from pride in her own talents, in her belongings or her birth.

She forgets that the things most to be desired in this world, and most highly regarded by those who are wisest, are simple faith, true, honest living and kindly hearts.

These are to be found in the humblest cottage, in the mill or workshop. Also she fails to remember that those who can pay their twenty shillings in the pound, and who defraud none, are as worthy of respect as their masters.

The woman who stands aloof, who does not desire to make friends among her companions, has, generally speaking, a selfish nature. She forgets that we all have a task to perform in this world; that when we are placed by circumstances or fate in a certain place, it is our duty to help make that atmosphere sunny and bright; to diffuse pleasant smiles and kind words; to banish all bitter feeling or petty jealousy.

If she stands all aloof in a little world of her own because Mrs. So-and-So is not, according to her mistaken notions, "quite a lady," she will miss the comradeship and goodfellowship which make this pathway so much pleasanter.

If she carries this "aloofness" into her love affairs, and refuses to listen to words of love from an honest, kind-hearted wooer, worth more than untold gold, because his antecedents do not please her, she will certainly regret it, for as she grows older lovers will be scarcer, and in the end she may have to content herself with a "broken stick."

Men and women must be judged by their actions and behavior, not by the accident of birth which placed them a step up or a step down in the social ladder.

The girl who keeps aloof from her fellows from a mistaken feeling of pride should beware, for "pride goes before a fall." Men, above all, desire to be appreciated and loved, not because of what they have inherited, but for the work done by their own hands and the success evolved from their own brain.

TO CLEAN PILLOWS

MAKE a lather of boiled soap in a large tub, empty the feathers from pillow into it, and wash them; rinse well in two or three waters, shake them out on a sheet and drain for an hour.

Have a pair of large sheets sewn together like a large bag, put the feathers inside, spread it on a hedge or bushes, and shake well every twenty minutes till the feathers are dry.

This should be done only on a hot day. If done well the feathers will be as good as new.

NEW ENGLAND CHOWDER

TAKE a good haddock, cut it in pieces three inches square; put a pound of fat salt pork, cut into strips, into the pot, set it on hot coals and fry out the grease; take out the pork but leave the grease in the bottom of the pot, and put a layer of fish and over that a layer of onions sliced, over that a layer of fish, with slips of the fried pork, then another layer of onions, and a few sliced raw potatoes, and so on alternately until your fish is all in. Mix some flour with as much water as will fill the pot, season to suit your taste and boil for half an hour. Have ready some pilot bread, soaked in water, and throw into your chowder five minutes before taking off.

A USE FOR COLD BAKED BEANS

THIS is how I use my "left-over" cold baked beans on Mondays for supper during the tomato season: Pare one quart large ripe tomatoes and chill. Arrange salad dish with lettuce cups, lay in slices of tomato, salted and peppered, put a mound of baked beans on top and cover generously with salad dressing.

ORANGE CERAM PIE

SCALD one pint milk in double boiler; add yolks of two eggs, one-half cup sugar, one-third cup flour, one-quarter teaspoon orange extract, one teaspoon butter. Mix all together well and cook five minutes. Allow this to cool slightly and pour into baked crust. Then bake until cream is thick. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and spread on top.

BREAD CAKE

WHEN ready to put in pans take one pint dough, add one cup sugar, one-quarter cup butter and two eggs, beaten. Beat until smooth and not stringy. Add grated yellow rind of a lemon and pour into a shallow greased pan. When light, sprinkle the top lightly with granulated sugar and cinnamon and chopped nuts or fruit. Press lightly into cake without spoiling the texture. Bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes.

CANNED GRAPES

PICK grapes from the stems, throwing away all unsound ones, and wash well. Have jars hot in tin of hot water. Put silver spoon in each. Then fill almost full of grapes. Pour boiling water on grapes and off again. Do this three times. Then pour on a syrup made in proportion of cup of sugar to a cup of water. Pour syrup on while boiling and seal at once.

Good Pointers for the Business Girl

NEVER get careless about your work and imagine that you are indispensable.

• • •

No one is indispensable, so you can't afford to do anything but your best.

• • •

No matter how small the undertaking is, do it as well as you can.

• • •

Don't get into the way of thinking: "Oh, this is so small and unimportant that it makes no difference how I do it!"

• • •

If you are not reliable in small things, you can't be trusted with big things.

• • •

Never be afraid of doing a little bit more than you are actually called upon to do.

• • •

It is through seizing every opportunity that you will reach higher things.

Be cheerful over your work. If you have to earn your living, you might as well be happy as grumpy over it.

• • •

Put your whole heart and soul into doing your work well, and treat all with whom you come in contact courteously.

• • •

During business hours attend strictly to the work you have in hand. After hours you can enjoy yourself with a clear sense of duty done.

• • •

Never talk to outsiders about what goes on in the office.

• • •

There are two things for a business woman to bear in mind during business hours—her duty toward her employer and her self-respect.

• • •

If she keeps these always in mind she is bound to do well.

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

CHAPTER CXXVIII.

The Beginning of the End

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE police had crept in while he was working to free the dog—four of them, as the desperate man realized, but Marr, though the odds were against him, though he knew that he had not one chance in a hundred now, had no thought of submitting tamely.

The touch of that hand on his shoulder, that sent its start of horror quivering through him, was like the touch of the rope slowly tightening round his neck; he would fight for that one hopeless chance in a hundred!

The desperateness of his position lent him a new strength, in which he forgot weariness and exhaustion. His clenched hand shot out, and one man reeled back, but two others were on him; he flung one off, only to find another's grasp.

There was a deep, ominous growl; in this tight corner Marr had one friend; the dog, seeing his master attacked, flew savagely, with gleaming fangs, at one of the assailants.

The policeman saw the dog coming, was barely in time with a blow on the animal's nose that stopped its rush for a second; another patrolman seized the dog's collar from behind, tightening it as he pulled it back.

A Murderer—A Man

"Call your brute off, or I'll brain it!" cried the man, whose hand had been gashed by the white fangs as he struck at the animal, to Marr, struggling like a madman and with a madman's strength with the other two patrolmen.

From a jumbled heap of old rusting weapons he seized a heavy battleaxe and raised it threateningly; and Marr, seeing the dog's danger, in terror for its safety, shouted out an insistent command to the animal. It was straining and twisting its head furiously, trying to bite the hand of the man that was dragging at its collar; but at its master's imperative voice it became suddenly quiet and sullenly passive, obeying him now as it had always obeyed him.

Outside in the street the dense crowd watched with breathless interest the strange drama in the shop fully revealed through the window—the five men outlined in the swaying desperate melee against the glare as of a furnace behind.

Their shouts of execration against Marr had changed into a wild burst of cheering from hoarse throats, as they realized that the man who might have escaped had come back to save his dog. Instantly all their sympathy had swept out to Marr.

The cry of one of their number, "He may be a murderer, but, by Heaven, he's a man!" had echoed the feelings of the whole crowd; and, as if of a sudden, preconcerted impulse, a movement was made toward the door of the shop, with a half-formed purpose of attempting a rescue.

But the surging, swaying mob was held back by the little resolute knot of police at the entrance and the threat of an inspector that unless they desisted the hose would be turned on them by the firemen.

The position of the five men inside was one of extreme peril while the brief struggle lasted.

They were drenched by the water that was poured into the shop to keep the fire from invading the front part of the premises; the volume of smoke and steam was blinding, and half-choked them; they were almost overpowered by the intense heat; that three minutes' fight was decided on the very brink of a furnace; the water saturated their clothes, to rise immediately in steam.

But Marr fought on like a maniac, and the creeping fire was almost up to them before the police got him secured at last, and carried the man out handcuffed, and with his feet pinioned, through the flames that were threatening to cut off their escape.

The Battle Over

"Phew! Three minutes of this in a place like that is as good as a day's work digging potatoes!" observed one patrolman facetiously to another, as they emerged under the painted sky, grim with smoke, hoarse and with eyes tingling.

"We didn't get out any too soon; there goes part of the roof!" as a crash was heard within the building they had just left.

Meanwhile over the wall that enclosed the yard could be heard the groans and yells of the crowd; its attitude had again become so threatening that it was not considered advisable to take the prisoner through it; all the sympathy of the mob was for the man who loved his dog and had fought so gamely; the appearance of the prisoner on the street would probably be the signal for an attempted rescue.

"We don't want any rescues after the trouble we've had in securing him," said the officer in authority.

He blew his whistle shrilly and presently Marr spoke once; with his fettered hands he was fondling the collie's head; the animal, as though it knew something was wrong, was crouching close up to him, looking up into his face with a moaning whine.

"You'll see that the dog's looked after, officer?" His voice was not quite steady.

The officer nodded.

CHAPTER CXXIX.

The Knot Tightens

THE detective stood in the middle of the little front room of Mr. Bywater's house in New Rochelle, and Freda Vail faced him, shrinkingly, and with terrified eyes.

"From information received we have reason to believe that you saw a man come from the flat of Mrs. March, otherwise known as Zingara, on the night she came by her death, and that you would recognise the man again?" he said.

The speaker was Jim's friend, the "family man" who had given the boy dinner and taken him home to play with the kids.

"Y—yes," quavered Freda, her pretty childish face tortured with fear.

"I have come to take you to tell us whether you identify a man now in custody as the person you saw leaving those rooms."

"No, no," cried Freda, wildly. "You are going to take me to prison!"

"He's in prison, certainly, and you'll have to go inside, of course—bless you, that's nothing! Come," he said in a not unkindly voice. "It's no good resisting. You'll have to go, whether you fancy it or not; I'm armed with authority to compel you. The cab is waiting."

"Oh, they'll lock me up!" cried Freda, wild with terror, "and I only took the jewels because Zingara was dead and couldn't want them again! And she wouldn't have minded—she always liked me——"

"That's all nonsense, you know. Are you ready, my girl?" said the officer, brusquely. "Remember, it's to save your sister. Your evidence may free her——"

"I think it was cruel of her to betray me," sobbed Freda in her childish way. "I'll never forgive her for telling what I thought she would keep confidential!"

The girl saw that she must go; Mrs. Bywater tried to explain to her that she had nothing to fear, but Freda refused to be comforted, and sobbed dismally all the way as she drove with the inspector to the station and rode to New York.

Meanwhile other preparations for the identification of Marr had been made. A plain-clothes officer had made an expedition to the neighborhood of the prison; he accosted a respectably-dressed man who was coming along the street.

Scores of women were on the watch for the Camera Man in yesterday's hurrying throngs of shoppers.

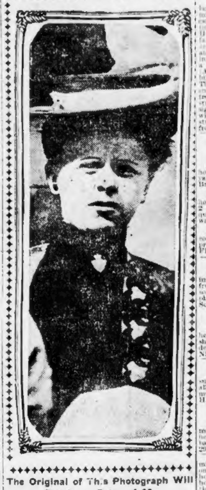
The little snapshot was taken yesterday in front of some store patronized by readers of this newspaper. A reward of $2 awaits the original. All she has to do is to identify the photo and the money is hers.



The Original of This Photograph Will Receive a Prize of $2.

GOLDBEATERS WIN BATTLE OF 10 WEEKS

Employers Yield to Demands for Closed Shop and Higher Wages.

The strike of the goldbeaters, as far as Boston is concerned, is practically over, the employers having agreed to the demands of the strikers. For ten weeks the men have been contending for a slight increase in wages and recognition of the closed shops. One-half of the men in Boston returned to work to-day.

James Towle, national president of the Goldbeaters' Union, said to-day:

"The men in all the cities where there are goldbeaters' shops will return to work at once when the employers agree to their contentions. I believe that in a few days the strike will be settled in all parts of the country. There may be a few dealers who will fail to agree, but we trust the arrangements will be satisfactory to all."

During the strike of the goldbeaters there has been a shortage of goldleaf all over the United States. The work of gilding the State House dome has been held up, but it is believed now that the work may soon be resumed, as the shop where the leaf is beaten began work to-day.

Big Piano Bargains
Roxbury Storage Salesrooms

Swell Bargains This Week. The prices on the well-known standard, high-class makes quoted below will not be changed for at least six days. Many fine new and second-hand uprights of other quality first-grade makers will go for so little that you would hardly believe the prices if we named them.

Don't Pay Piano Trust Big Profits

Just remember that we pay no commissions of any kind. We have no high rents to pay, no big agents or retailers' profits to get out of you, no teachers' little "Rake off" to take out of your pocket. All these sums of money must be added to the original legitimate profit of the maker when you buy a piano at the Gilded Piano Warerooms down in the High Rent District—and remember you pay it all.

The Bread Line and the Chinese Line

Neither, Unfortunately, Is IMAGINARY

There is a picture on this page for Americans to think about. It is a fact that hundreds of men this coming Winter will stand in the bread lines on streets in all the big cities.

It is a fact that at the same time there will be long lines of Chinese at Panama going up to the window of the paymaster of the United States government. And the money that they will get will be money paid in taxes by the workers in this country.

The Republican administration has already brought five thousand Chinese coolies to work at nine cents an hour. It is officially announced that these coolies will be turned over to the contractors that are going to take the work of digging off the government's hands.

Thus contractors, with the assistance of the United States government, will have their work done by Chinese labor.

As long as the government set the example by bringing in five thousand Chinamen at nine cents an hour, there will be nothing to prevent the contractors from bringing in ten thousand more at FIVE CENTS AN HOUR, or at twenty cents a day, which is more than double the usual wages paid in China.

Voters, with your ballots this Fall you will either approve or disapprove of the action of the Republican party, which has deliberately opened the American labor field and the United States pocketbook to coolie labor.

Remember that there was no excuse for doing this, EXCEPT THE DESIRE TO LET CONTRACTORS MAKE A HIGH PROFIT.

This government is rich. AND ITS WEALTH COMES FROM AMERICAN LABOR.

The great majority of voters of this country are workingmen and business men ABSOLUTELY OPPOSED TO CHINESE LABOR.

Don't you know that when the Republican party hires five thousand Chinese IT SLAPS EVERY AMERICAN WORKINGMAN IN THE FACE?

Don't you know that the money which is to be paid out to favored contractors would make work safe, healthful, at Panama for good, well-paid American labor?

Don't you know that the men—officials, engineers and others—who work there under decent conditions are in perfect good health?

Don't you think it would be better for the government, more truly representative of your will and of all the people's will, to pay Americans good wages down there, secure their health, INSTEAD OF BRINGING HERE HORDES OF CHINESE COOLIES WITH THEIR WIVES AND FAMILIES?

Tell the man who asks your vote for Guild and Draper this:

"No, I am no more stupid than the Irish and Scotch and English across the waters in Great Britain."

The English government DIDN'T HIRE COOLIES ITSELF. It only gave permission to the mine owners in the Transvaal to hire Chinese labor.

The Transvaal is many thousands of miles farther from London than the Panama Canal is from Boston.

Yet the workingmen of England and Ireland and Scotland and Wales voted overwhelmingly to punish the English government for starting up the Chinese labor. And this in spite of the fact that they have never had a Chinese problem in Great Britain as we have had it here.

To punish the government for indorsing Chinese labor, the workingmen united with extraordinary power. TO THEIR HONOR, THEY PUT MORE THAN A HUNDRED OF THEIR OWN MEN IN PARLIAMENT, AND THEY TAUGHT THE TORIES A LESSON ABOUT THE CHINESE THAT THEY WILL NEVER HAVE TO REPEAT.

The workingmen of America must teach that same lesson here. And THIS is the time to do it.

If you let one election go by, if you let the party that hired the coolies win THIS election, you put your indorsement ON WHAT THEY HAVE DONE, AND YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO DO THAT IF YOU HAVE RESPECT FOR YOUR OWN WELFARE AND LOVE FOR YOUR COUNTRY.

Mr. Roosevelt's "Federal Inheritance Tax Scheme"

A Good Idea. But It Doesn't Go Far

Mr. Roosevelt has come out in favor of a Federal inheritance tax. He thinks that the rich man who dies should be compelled through taxation to leave part of his property to the national Government.

The idea is not bad. It is certainly not unreasonable to ask that the man with great wealth should leave part of it to the nation or the State which has protected him in the possession of his wealth and given him the opportunity to acquire it.

Whether the tax on inheritance should go to the locality or to the national Government is a question to be settled. There is no doubt whatever that such a tax in the case of great fortunes is a just tax.

But, when Mr. Roosevelt presents the Federal Inheritance Tax as a SOLUTION of the problem of Trust fortunes, OF CRIMINAL FORTUNES, he presents, it seems to us, rather a feeble solution.

Agitation in this country is not against HONEST FORTUNES, no matter how big they may be. The American sentiment is that a man is entitled TO WHAT HE HONESTLY EARNS, much or little.

The agitation is against the enormous fortunes built up ON A CRIMINAL BASIS.

It is against the fortune of a thousand millions which is due to bribery, to conspiracy, to violation of law.

It is against the fortune which represents successful defiance of the will of all the people.

The fortune of which the American people complains is just as much criminal, just as much stolen, as the money that the burglar has hidden under his bed.

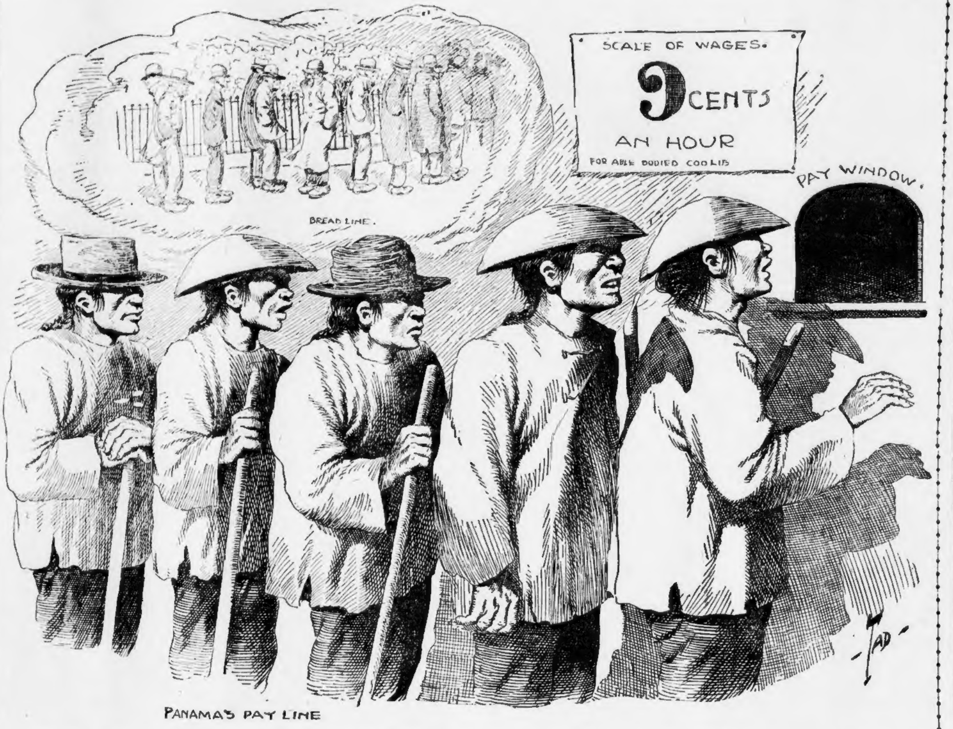
It would not solve the burglar problem if somebody got up and proposed a Federal Inheritance Tax on the property of burglars.

The people would say, "NO, LET US IDENTIFY THOSE BURGLARS AND PUT THEM IN JAIL NOW. WE DON'T WANT TO TAX THEM AFTER THEY ARE DEAD. WE WANT TO JAIL THEM TO-DAY."

And that is how the people feel about the men that steal a thousand millions, and then put their men in office, put their judges upon the bench, that they may steal a thousand millions more.

The people will not be content to tax their stolen money after they are dead. They want a President that will help them PUT THOSE MEN IN JAIL TO-DAY.

THE OLD LINE AND A NEW ONE



With thousands of men in this country needing work every Winter, and with those that are employed and decently paid constantly struggling to hold their own, WHY MUST THE REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION BRING FIVE THOUSAND CHINESE TO OUR DOORS?

Is it a decent sight for Americans who created this country, and who must pay for the canal, to witness next Winter the bread lines in the big cities AND THE PAY LINE FOR THE CHINESE IN FRONT OF THE UNITED STATES PAY OFFICE?

1. STRANGER (panting)—Oh, oh! o—o—o—h! I can't go a step farther. I'm ready to drop. I've chased that man three blocks to give him this package, which he dropped.

MR. E. Z.—Here, hold my bag, umbrella and coat; give me the package and I'll catch him.

2. MR. E. Z.—Hi, there, hi! You've dropped a package, sir.

PEDESTRIAN—I dropped no package, my dear sir. That doesn't belong to ME. Mr. Mark, I believe? Ha-ha, some one has been playing a joke on you, sir.

3. MR. E. Z.—Confound that fellow! I'll make him sweat for this. I'm just going to see what is in his package. By Jove! A common brick. By ginger! I'll teach that fellow to play tricks on ME.

4. MR. E. Z.—Why, where has that rogue gone? Where is my bag, my coat, my umbrella? Ye gods! I see it all. PINCHED by a scurvy trick, and there were seven hundred dollars' worth of gold bonds in that bag. Oh, ye generation of vipers!

UNCONQUERED

However skilled and strong art thou, my foe;
However fierce is thy relentless hate,
Though firm thy hand and strong thy aim and straight
Thy poisoned arrow leaves the bended bow
To pierce the target of my heart, ah! know
I am the master yet of my own fate.
Thou canst not rob me of my best estate,
Though fortune, fame and friends, yea, love shall go.

Not to the dust shall my true self be hurled;
Nor shall I meet thy worst assaults dismayed.
When all things in the balance are well weighed
There is but one great danger in the world—
Thou canst not force my soul to wish thee ill,
That is the only evil that can kill.

Beware of Jealousy!

By Winifred Black

Once I knew a pretty, clear-eyed, soft-voiced, calm-browed little woman. She wasn't particularly clever or especially lively, and she was not at all in the swim. But I always made it my business to see that little woman at least once in every six weeks or so. She made me think of a clear, placid lake in a cool, pleasant forest.

And whenever I was worried or vexed or troubled about a whole lot of foolish little things that weren't worth wasting brain tissue over I'd go and see this little woman and come away calmed and refreshed and strengthened.

She's been away for a while, and the other day I met her on the street—my little woman. She was so changed that if she hadn't spoken to me first I would not have known her. Her blue eyes were restless, her calm brow was furrowed, and even her soft voice had somehow a rasp in it.

"Have you been ill?" I asked.

"Why, no," she said. "Never better in my life," and she laughed a queer little flighty, affected, hysterical laugh.

"Come, let's have luncheon together," I said, and before we had ordered the soup the secret was out.

My little, pure-minded, sweet-tempered friend hadn't taken off her gloves before she began telling me the latest scandal about a man we knew.

From that scandal she branched off into a general dissertation on men and their morals. Men were all bad, she said, all false, all fickle. You couldn't believe a single word one of them said. She tried to be very cynical and very worldly while she was saying these foolish things, but her pitiful little mouth kept twisting, and her poor little voice almost broke two or three times.

She was poisoned, poisoned with the most fearful poison that exists, the terrible madness of jealousy. Some one had been putting ideas about her husband into her head, and the whole fabric of her world had crumbled under her poor little frightened feet.

Do you know what I'm going to do about it? I know, of course, what I ought to do. I ought to smile and say nothing, but I can't bear it to stand by and see two people's lives wrecked for want of a little common sense.

Jealousy! If I wanted to wish any curse on the head of any human being I would wish him to be bitten with this awful disease, for it is a disease as truly as hydrophobia or rheumatism or melancholia is a disease.

Go and see a good doctor, and he'll help to bring you back to your senses.

Little Editorials from the People

"SIT UP AND THINK"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

It only takes a casual observer to see the methods being used for several weeks past to defeat a certain candidate for the Governorship of Massachusetts.

The letter of John B. Moran should make some people sit up and think.

Congressmen, who falsely feel sure of their constituents; other so-called practical politicians, certain editors who have drawn from the public pap for years and who are controlled by corporate interests, all join in public print in the "Holier than thou art" chorus and say anything or anybody but the choice of the voting people of the State.

The so-called "editors" have to obey the orders of their masters. Some of them have held important positions under the country's payroll, and their administration of positions held has been questioned.

The BOSTON AMERICAN fills to every iota a long-felt niche in the newspaper field of Boston and New England. Without fear or favor it appeals to its readers to look at the public records of men who appeal to their political suffrage, and, without looking to the counting room, editorially speaks its views without qualification and in an emphatic manner.

Its advocacy of the principles as promulgated by the Independence League, shows that the BOSTON AMERICAN has at heart the interests of the large majority of the thinking voters of the State, and the latter will reciprocate by registering in no uncertain terms their approval at the November election. Very truly yours,

"MURRAY"
